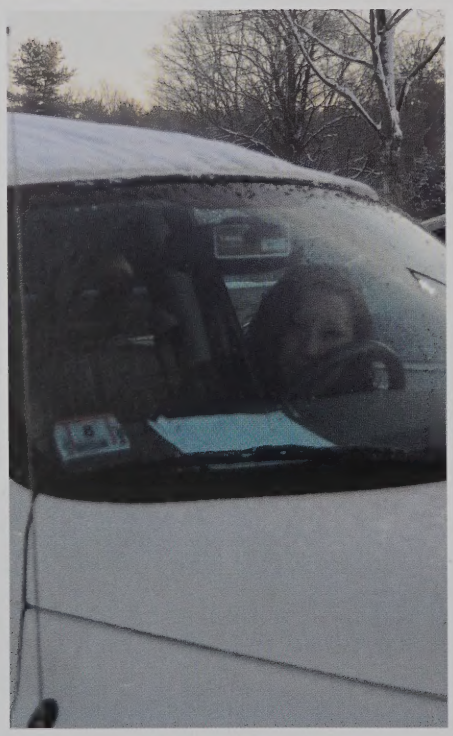
HELP! HELP! Junior Weston Smith helps his girlfriend, sophomore Allison Beaudoin. He tries to see what is in her eye so he can help her get it out!



SENIORITIS Senior Kailey Feeney leans on her steering wheel and prepares herself to walk into school to start off her day. "Senioritis has gotten every senior this year, including me," said Kailey.

GOOD MORNING, TANTASQUA!

story & photos by Summer Walker

Morning is the time of day that everyone in high school dreads. But mornings are not always such a bad thing! The morning is when you can catch up and tell all your friends about the juicy gossip that happened the night or day before. The morning is when you get to relax in the halls before you start your stressful day of classes.

Every person does something different and unique in the morning. Some people like it sit or lay down by their lockers. A select few will stay in their cars for as long as they can before they have to walk into the school. There are also a lot of people who like to stay in the lobby and wait for their friends to come in from the buses.

There are, after all, many of cool and different people at Tantasqua. Some girls will even do their hair and makeup in the locker room. There is a big crowd that goes to the cafeteria to get some breakfast because it is easier than eating at school than at home.

"I barely make it before the bell to see my girlfriend in the morning," said senior Brandon Merriman. Many people who drive like to sleep as late as they can so they can get their beauty sleep. A lot of people just barely make it to their A block class on time.

"I can't wait until I drive everyday, so I can stop taking the bus in the morning!" said junior Melanie Monteiro. Upperclassmen hate when they have to keep taking the bus. But when they get their license and a car, they will really appreciate it.

"I have to lifeguard the morning lap swim at six in the morning!" said senior Reilly Lucas. He has to wake up even earlier than most people have to and go to work!

A lot of people hate the morning and can't wait for the day to be over, but the morning is a good time for you and friends to relax before classes begin!

Brrr, It's Cold!
Senior Dan Peck hurries from his car in the senior lot to get out of the cold. "It's been a really cold winter, so my running skills come in handy when I have to run into the school out of the cold!" said Danny. This has been an unusually long and cold winter, so students practically run from their cars to get into the building to get nice and warm.

Find Your Friends
Everyone gathers into the foyer from the buses. Some people wait for their friends to come and meet them, while others go right up to their lockers to wait for their friends.

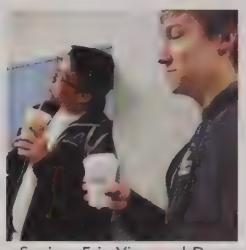
Too Tired To Stand
Seniors Sam Macero, Elliot Davis, Nargis Aslami, Emma Coats, and junior Tanner Perry all sit in the morning to rest before they have to start their classes. "We all like to sit down to relax and talk before the bell to get to class rings," said Emma.

Sharing Some Laughs
Juniors Morgan Button, Melanie Monteiro, and Felicia Bouchard are laughing and listening intently to junior Elysia Farrell's story. "I love morning gossip time to hear everybody's interesting stories!" said Morgan.

BREAKFAST TIME!

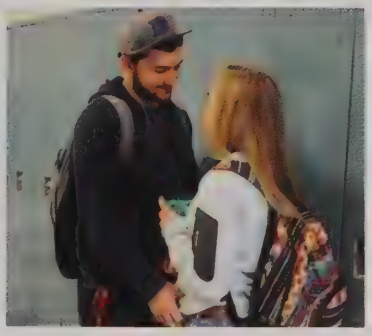
Even though the weather is cold, that doesn't stop sophomores Shannon Rogers and Krystina Grimes from drinking their icy Dunkin' Donuts drinks in the morning to wake them up for the first class.

Senior Anthony Robinson gets his breakfast from the vending machine. "I had a few extra dollars, and was still hungry after eating breakfast in the cafeteria, so I got some more food." explained Anthony.



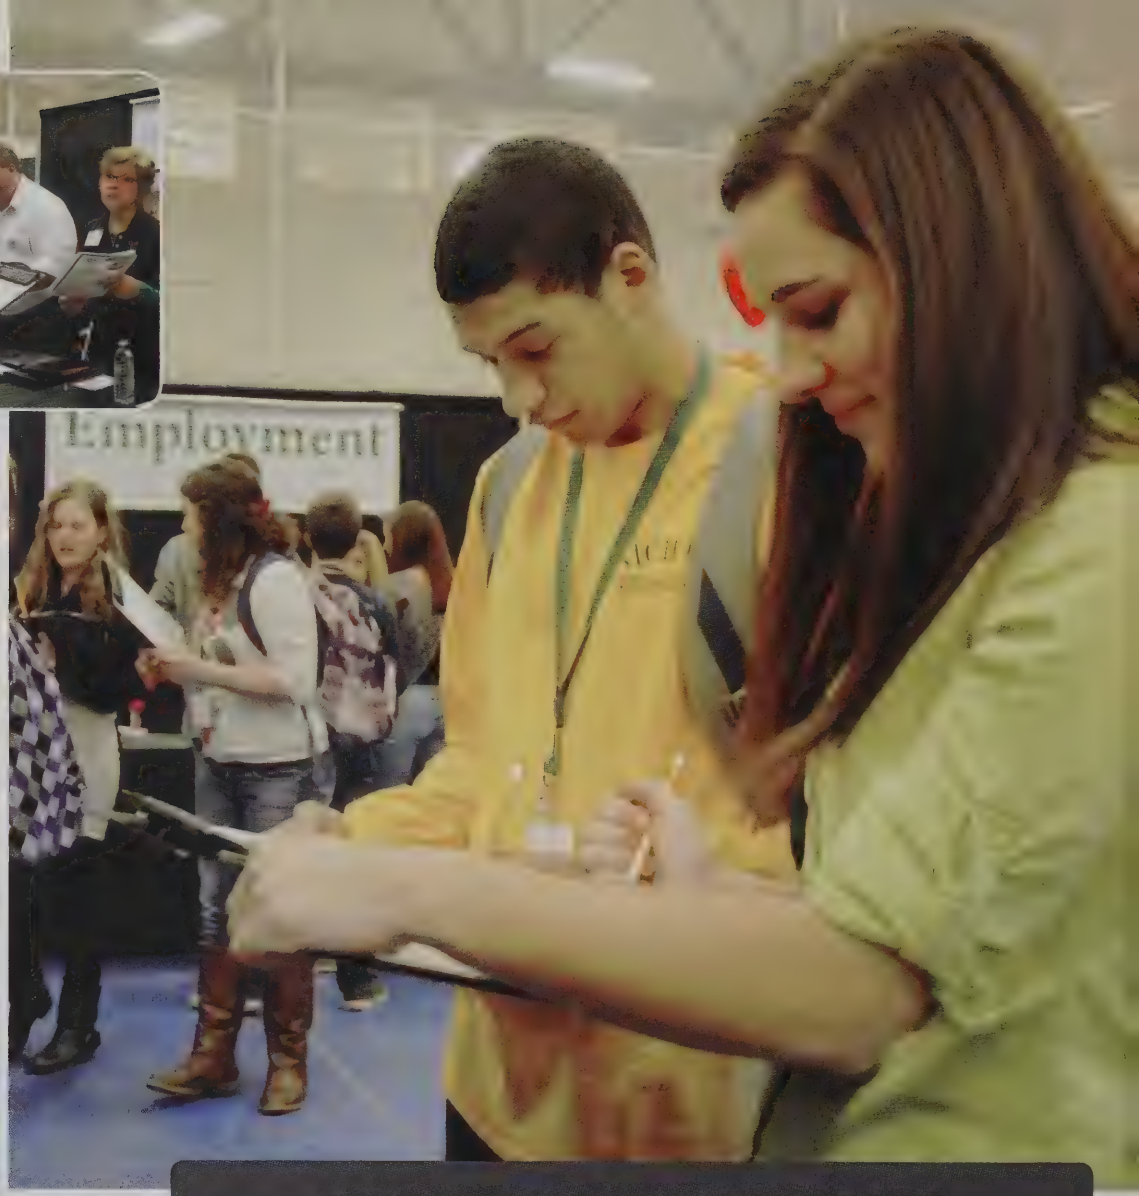
Seniors Eric Ying and Drew Nascembeni are opposites. Eric drinks his cold iced coffee while Drew drinks his hot coffee to keep warm on the cold days.

MORNING RENDEZVOUS

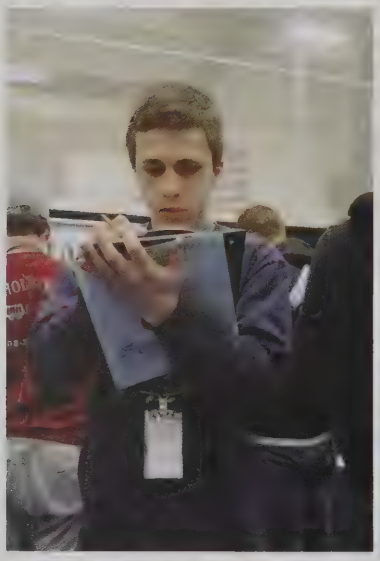


TOP: Junior Tyler Cave walks his girlfriend Bridget Candelaria to her first period class. "Coffee is the number one thing that wakes me up in the morning, but Tyler making me laugh is a big help too," said Bridget. BOTTOM LEFT: Senior John Vitello stares intimately into Dakota Haddad's eyes while she talks to him. "Telling JP about my night is a good refresh to start my morning," said Dakota. BOTTOM RIGHT: Senior couple Alyssa Edmonds and Andrew Alicea share a good laugh before they have to get serious and get to their class.

INSURANCE HELP
Senior Evan Sanderson gets help on his insurance plan. Evan said, "I realized a lot about insurance that I didn't even know." A healthy future is important if students want to be successful.



WHATS GOING ON?
Dan Peck reviews his credit score and wonders why it's so low. With this disadvantage, he needs to figure our how he'll get by.



WILL WE GET MARRIED?
Couple Jessica Luke and Chris Chalmers discuss their future together and how much money they can spend for the month. Jessica said, "It was quite the shock seeing our monthly expenses!"

EARNING CREDIT FOR LIFE

story by Logan Nardi photos by Maddison Mayberry, Melanie Monterio and Bridget Candeleria

Seniors have a lot on their minds: classes, friends, families, and work take up a lot of their time. More than anything else, though, seniors worry about their futures. What will it be like? How will the succeed?

To help answer these questions, the seniors left classes one March afternoon to discover if their futures would be economically successful or not. At the locally-sponsored Credit for Life event, students are asked to spend their "money" according to the profession they chose. The students played the role of a 25-year-old with a career, credit and salary. Although the seniors randomly received a credit score at the event, in real life their score would be based off their everyday financial decisions.

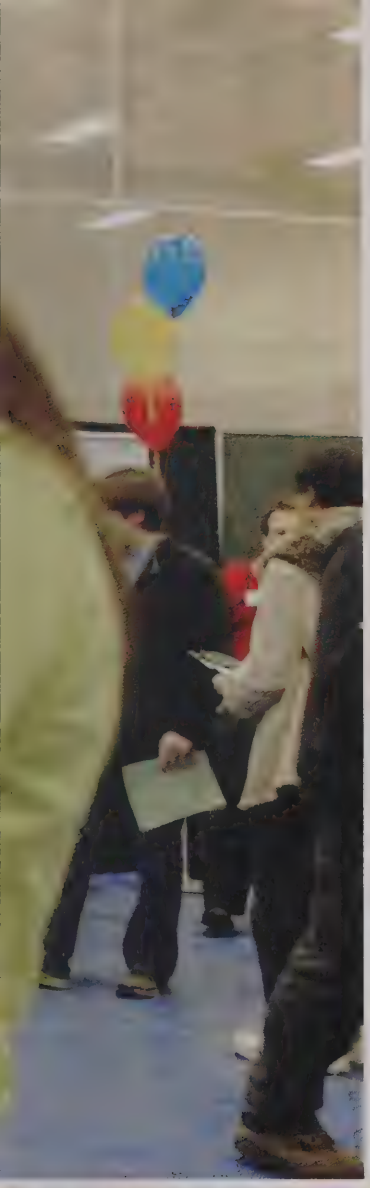
"When I picked a career, I chose something that I was considering after school. After seeing what my financial life would be, I'm still considering the career," said Drew Nascembeni.

Some booths tempted the seniors to spend money on things they didn't need; others had them lose money, others gained. All the booths related to real life situations that will happen to the seniors.

The majority of students were tempted to spend on things they didn't need, and others strayed away. Some ended up having to walk for transportation, and others were left with a tiny house to live in!

Depending on both luck and decisions, students could end with a lavish lifestyle or in the poorhouse. The seniors certainly left Credit for Life with more information than they came with. The event taught the Seniors how to balance their money and end with a financially stable situation.

"Having this information with me will definitely help me later on I'm grateful Tantasqua and Country Bank let us have this opportunity!" said Drew.



What do we do?
Seniors Taylor Farland and Jeremiah Sciarafa are shocked by all the things they didn't realize about life after school. They both agreed that they both need to do more planning on life and careers. Taylor said, "It wasn't as big of a shock attending Credit for Life, but I did realize how unprepared I was."

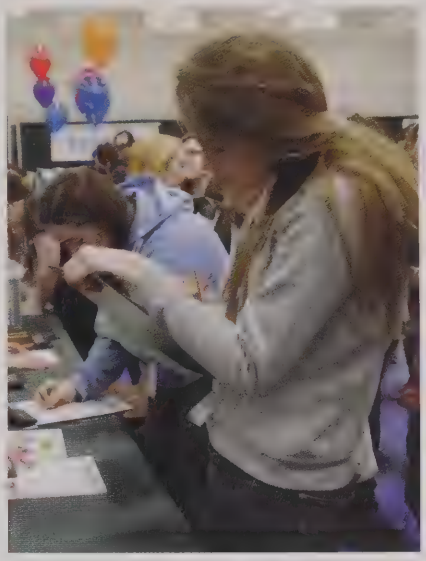
Say that again?
Seniors Emily Arena and Victoria Austin are ready for what's ahead after school and were surprisingly calm during the chaotic day in the Field House. "I already have a plan for after school, and Credit for Life just gave me a better understanding on what's to come!" said Emily.

I'm so ready!
Senior Maddy Creamer has her life already planned out, and Credit for Life was a breeze for her. This stressful day for most seniors didn't affect her as she waltzed through the series of tasks.

Asking questions
Seniors Tyler Gratton and Mike Nicholas ask questions about balancing their monthly salary. "I'm still going to buy expensive things at the Fun Fun Fun booth; it can't be helped!" said Tyler.

TAKING NOTES FOR THE FUTURE

The senior class members take notes as they receive important information about life after school. Learning about the challenges they face ahead of them made them realize that life isn't always going to be easy. "Whatever happens, you just have to take it in strides," advised senior Bobby Law. With the experience they've now had, seniors are ready to tackle the future.

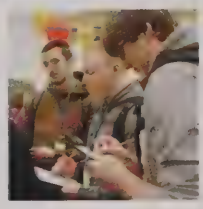


CHOICES ...

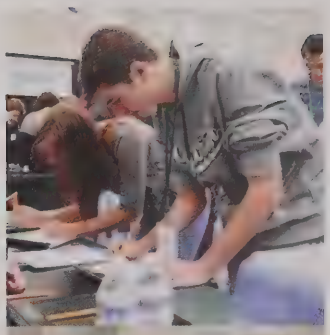
The Fun Fun Fun booth attracted a lot of attention from seniors. The temptation to buy cool and expensive things made the Seniors think twice.

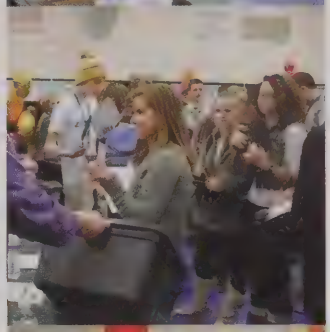
The insurance booth sent all seniors through a loop. Depending on their credit score, this booth could be a stressful situation to some!

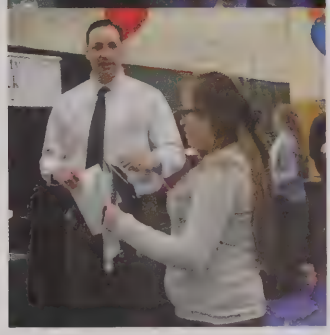
Transportation sparked everyone's interest. All students wanted to drive a luxurious car, but some were left walking!



The Credit Score booth was "make or break" for everyone at the fair. If you were lucky, you would receive a amazing credit score, but you could be doomed with a horrible one, too.







TAKING NOTES

TOP: Spencer Austin finalizes his future at the Credit Counseling booth. He was told that he was left with nothing and faced the harsh reality in the future he picked. Austin said, "Everything will eventually pan out, so never worry! Life always has its ups and downs."
MIDDLE: DeAngela Galonek fearfully picks her credit score and starts her journey through life. Luckily, she was saved with an alright score, so going through the rest of the day wouldn't be so bad.
BOTTOM: Ashley Dupre heads for the Reality Check booth in hope that she hadn't lost her money. "Life is always about chance; you could succeed or you could fail. No matter what, you have to follow through with what you do or pick," she said.

The Girl With The Rainbow Lips
As a sophomore, Anna Tenerowicz has a unique sense of style. "I don't do pants. I don't even own a pair of jeans that actually fits," said Anna. She focuses on fashion every day and has lipstick to match each of her outfits (in every color you could imagine, even blue!). Here, she is wearing a polka-dotted dress with a black peplum skirt and flats with kittens on them. She completes the ensemble with matching red lipstick.

WHATEVER YOUR STYLE

story by Lauren Gerrish

It's easy to follow the crowd, but some students use their style as a way to stand out and be noticed. Fashion isn't just about following trends—it's a way of expressing who you are and conveying your personality to the world without using words. "You can really tell who a person is by what they wear," says senior Emily Girouard, "It sets certain people apart for their individuality." At Tantasqua, some students get noticed every day for their unique sense of style.

Easily Dressed To Impress
Cameron Martel takes his skater style to the next level. He loves brands like Diamond, LRG, RVCA, and you'll rarely catch him without a snapback. Cameron represents a popular style among teenage guys today. "When it comes to fashion, I don't really think about it," said Cameron. "If you looked in my closet, you'd see a lot of typical brands. They're all meant for skateboarding, but I don't wear them for that – I just wear them because I like how they look." Cameron also likes to keep his hair cropped close because that way it's easier to take care of. "I like it more, and it looks better," he said.

His Own Form Of Artwork

Colton Madore is headed for a career in fashion. He plans to study design in college and currently works in retail. "I like to reinvent outfits. I try not to wear the same thing over and over," said Colton. "Fashion is my artwork." Sometimes, his unique sense of style comes across with simplicity. Here, he is wearing a denim shirt, an infinity scarf, and white jeans.

The Blogger Babe

Freshman Brooke Galonek is one of the greatest fashion influences in her class. She runs her own fashion blog, theclothinghanger.blogspot.com. "The hallway is my runway, " said Brooke, "My style reflects my mood each day. Sometimes it's edgy, sometimes its girly." Here, she is wearing an army jacket, pink headband, gray tank top, leggings, and her favorite boots.

Designer Inspired

Lauren Gerrish prefers to stand out. She loves fashion and hopes to have a career in that field eventually. She describes her style as "taking inspiration from the runways today, as well as from vintage looks." Here, she is wearing jeans, studded Steve Madden Boots, a vintage hat, and her Moschino Belt, which she describes as "my favorite item that I own. I've been obsessed with it for years after I saw my friend wearing one, and I knew I had to have it."

"At 6 foot 4, standing IS standing out"

Collin McClutchy does what he wants, says what he wants, and dresses how he wants. He has a very unique style that is all his own. Here, he is wearing a denim vest, sweater, collared shirt, maroon jeans and his own glasses.

THE WONDERFUL LAND OF OZ

story by Emily Girouard
photos by Jake Farland and Taylor Mersfelder

"I got to make children cry!" said Caroline Concieson. How? By playing the Wicked of the West in Tantasqua's production of The Wizard of Oz. Not only did it sell out on opening night, but this fantastic show made audiences of all ages laugh, cringe in suspense, and, yes, cry.

Audience members loved characters like Glinda (Claire Campbell) or Dorothy (Julia Labuski) while loving to hate characters like The Wicked Witch of the West (Caroline Concieson)—but either way, they couldn't keep their eyes off the action on stage.

Students involved in the musical were lead characters, part of the ensemble cast, part of the stage crew, or part of the pit band, but whatever the case, they all enjoyed putting in the long hours needed to make this musical successful. "We were after school basically every day," said freshman Elise Hankis. "It was a lot of work, but production week and all the performances made it feel so worth it."

Between complicated flying equipment, lightening-fast costume changes, and numerous huge set pieces, the cast and crew had more than enough to handle. "My costume was sweaty, hard to move in, and made me feel sore for hours even after I took it off," said Collin McClutchly of the Tinman's outfit. "But at least I looked super cool." All of the actors stood out for their wild costumes and the methods of acting they used to bring the characters alive.

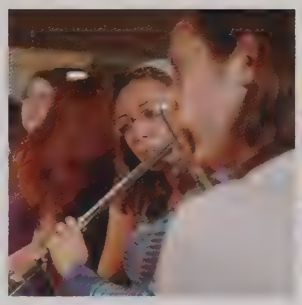
If next year's fall musical is anything in the realm of The Wizard of Oz, then students have even more exciting adventures to look forward to.

FLYING HIGH
Senior Claire Campbell hovers above the poppy field in a bubble as Glinda, the Good Witch of the North. A professional flying company flew in from Chicago in order to provide the actors with the expertise necessary for using the flying equipment. "I felt like a reindeer at flight training!" said Campbell of the experience.

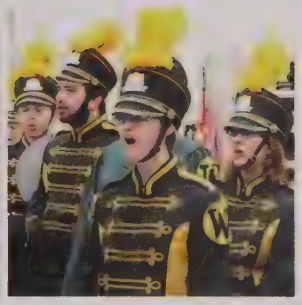
THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE ... TANTASQUA
Junior Julia Labuski, who played the lead character of Dorothy, gazes into the crystal ball in the Wicked Witch's castle. Here she sang the emotional reprise of "Somewhere Over the Rainbow."

THE EMERALD CITY
The ensemble cast welcomes the Wizard-seeking quartet to the Emerald City by singing "The Wonderful Land of Oz". Nearly all of the ensemble, including freshman Kate Beland, are also members of the Show Choir, and seize every opportunity to perform on the Tantasqua Stage.

BEHIND THE CURTAIN



RING THE BELLS OUT
The Pit Band plays the score for this dynamic musical. Members of the Pit worked long hours with Director Robert Raymond and with the actors to make sure they consistently came in on the right musical cues.



SING IT HIGH, SING IT LOW
Students, alongside teachers, warm up their voices in the chorus room. The Wicked Witch's army, called the "Winkies," needed to be as large as possible, so staff members across the district volunteered to be a part of this production.

IF I ONLY HAD A MIC
Senior Collin McClutchy, who has previously appeared in Tantasqua productions, gets "mic'd" before the start of the first show. "It feels different, performing as a senior," he said. "Everything has to be perfect. It's a good kind of stress."

ALL HANDS ON DECK
Director Reagan Paras jumps into the scene to show the actors just how they show be performing the scene. Here he acts as Professor Marvel (Reilly Lucas) and interacts with Dorothy (Julia Labuski) on stage.

"And your little dog, too!"
Junior Caroline Concieson as Mrs. Gluth (the Wicked Witch of the West) angrily snatches Toto away from Dorothy. What many don't know, however, is that Toto, also known as "Luigi," is Caroline's very own pet dog! "Lui kept wanting to run over to me from Julia (Dorothy) during the show, but she and the other characters would lure him away with hotdogs," explained Caroline

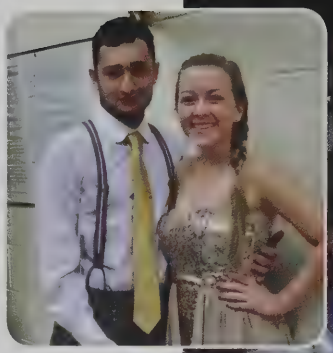
Come and meet those dancing feet
The Jitterbugs distract the quartet from getting to the Wicked Witch's castle by doing the terrifying "Jitterbug" dance. The dancing for numbers like this one were more involved, and required performers with years of dance experience to pull off such complicated routines. But some of ensemble cast was able to join in and pick up on the dances, making the group of Jitterbugs even more massive and intimidating.

PUT YOUR BEAST FACE FORWARD

THE SCARECROW
Senior Doug Brady is rapidly transformed into the scarecrow. Brady has been in a wide variety of stage plays and musicals in and out of Tantasqua, and plans to pursue acting and film in college.

THE TINMAN
Collin McClutchy becomes the silvery man of tin. "Blood, sweat and tears all went into this costume," said McClutchy, "but it was worth it in the end. The show was so theatrical."

THE LION
Senior Devin Salviuolo growls as the Cowardly Lion. This was his first lead role in a musical, but this year he is also a Dance Captain of Tantasqua's show choir "Encore!"



Mr. & Mrs. Gatsby
Dakota Haddad and John Vitello pose for a picture on the night of their senior homecoming. "I had a great time spending my last semi-formal dance with my lovely boyfriend," said Dakota.

Our Last Hoorah!
Best friends Sydney Barnes and Julie Lefebvre celebrate. Julie said, "It is weird to think this is our last homecoming, so we are trying to make it as special and memorable as we are."

All the Gents at the Party
Jake Celko, Chandler Beaudoin, Trevor Robert and Austin Dugay throw their firsts up and get ready to party and have a good time. "Homecoming is totally radical, and I love my bros" said Jake.

DANCE ALL NIGHT, OLD SPORT!

story by Bridget Candelaria and Maddison Mayberry photos by Erik Browoski

Homecoming: a time of the year when girls get to sport the latest fall trends and the guys get to show off their different tastes in neckwear.

It's rare to find an event that accommodates all grades like homecoming does at Tantasqua. The excitement ranges from the freshmen, who get to experience their first high school dance, to the sophomores and juniors, who are simply enjoying the ride, all the way up to the seniors, who have to make the most of their last memories here.

Every year, student counsel decides on an exciting theme to spice things up. With a recent interest in The Great Gatsby, and the extravagant parties that were thrown in the movie, student counsel thought it would be a great fit for this year's homecoming dance.

When entering the building, students waited to sign in. The first thirty minutes of the dance were a bit awkward and slow, but once all of the guests were there having a great time, the dance really took off.

The DJ played 2013's top hits, occasionally throwing in a slow song or two. By the looks of everyone's dancing, the music was entertaining to all. The night ended as all homecomings do, with the much-anticipated crowning of the homecoming king and queen. This year, Nick Beaudry and Autumn Wong won the honor.

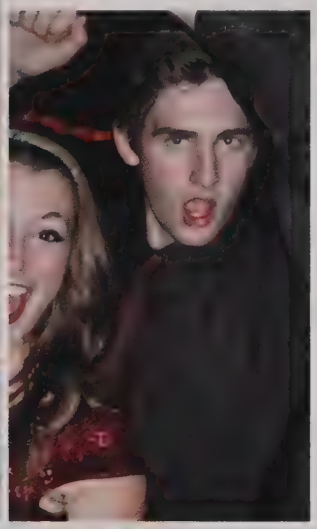
Overall, the night was such a success that it left students wanting more and looking forward to the dances to come.

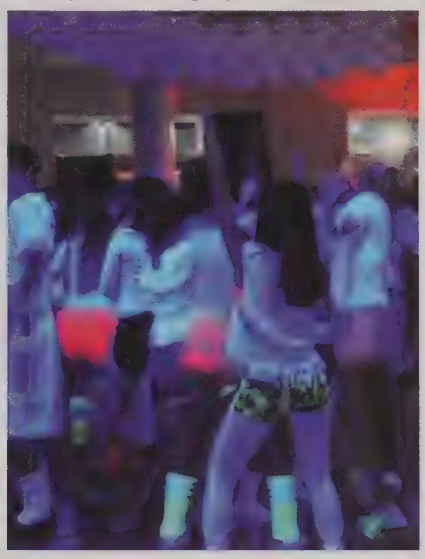
Blacklight Dance

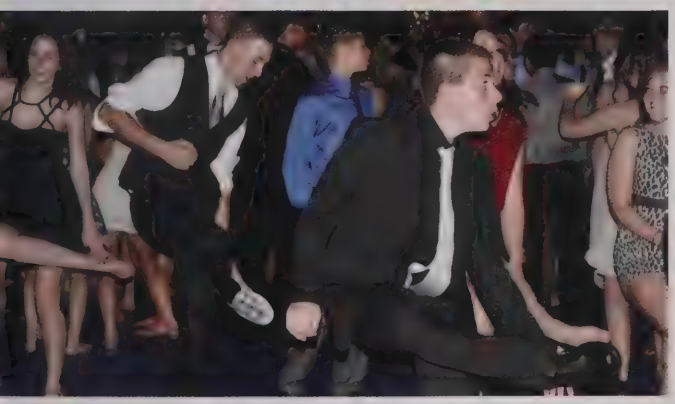
The junior class sponsored its second annual blacklight dance, an informal dance held in the cafeteria. Students are encouraged to wear their brightest colors in order to stand out from the crowd. Amelia LaMountain said, "The junior class student counsel put so much effort into making this dance fun for all grades; I had a great time and it was satisfying knowing I was part of making it possible."

Put your hands in the air!
Students gravitate towards the front of the dance floor as the music gets crazy. Emily Zollo, Dominic Daponte, Annie Gregoire and Jenna Plouffe gather near the blasting speakers and smile, showing that they're having a good time.

Ruby Red
Cam Simoneau and date Katie Knox match elegantly in red while they dance the night away. When asked how his last homecoming went, Cam said, "I love just getting crazy on the dance floor! I had so much fun this year with my girlfriend."







Cotton Eyed Joe
Students from all grades participate in a fun line-dance, different from the usual style of dancing.

Homecoming King & Queen
Just after being crowned Tantasqua's 2013 homecoming court Autumn and Nick share their traditional slow dance as King and Queen.

Glowing Girls

Best friends Abby Gallant and Ali O'Neil got into the blacklight spirit with their matching white shirts and neon tights.

Lindsay Gorey sports neon eyeblack. Her white shirt and headband glow cohesively in the fluorescent atmosphere.

Jerry Martinez, Jenna Morris, Amanda LaFlamme, Laura Polizoti, Alex Dickey and Liz St. Pierre pose together for a quick picture to remember a fun night.

A group of rowdy students, all dressed in white, dance the night away.

THAT'S MISTER TANTASQUA TO YOU!

Tantasqua male beauty pageant, better known as Mr. T, was a success again. This year's contestants thrilled the crowd with their unique displays of personality. The pageant includes talent, swimsuit, and formal wear portions. This year's crowned contestant was senior Nate Geyer. Nate had won the judges over with his creative skits and confidence.

TOP: Junior Contestant Connor O'Brien teaches the crowd how to eat through a snorkel to receive proper meal proportions to achieve a good bikini bod. MIDDLE: Senior Nate Geyer, winner of Mr. T, sports a nice swimsuit accompanied by his confetti-throwing posse.His extravagantly simple performance in the swim wear category won the crowd over. BOTTOM: The most exciting performance overall was the talent portion of the competition, when contestant Nate Geyer and his two wing men Senior Jake Farland and Joey Wellwood perform a skit to the song Solider Boy. The unreal appearance of these normally tall seniors had the crowd in awe.
. Nate had won the judges over with his creative skits and confidence.

GIRLY CAR ACCESSORIES

Victoria Austin turns heads wherever she goes with her cute Beetle and pink hub caps. "My car makes me feel like a Barbie!" she said. She even has a pink flower potted by her steering wheel.

VDUB LOVE

Buddies Sam Hunter and Andrew Alicea share their passion for cars. The two seniors park close and check Andrew's oil. They love to focus on wheels, suspension, motor, and interior. They both have lowered their cars before. "It looks clean," decided Andrew, who is always proud to drive his MK1 Jetta.

WHATEVER YOU DRIVE

story by Emily Arena photos by Emily Arena, Narissa Tremblay, Victoria Austin

Ah, getting your license is one of the first tastes of freedom a high school student receives. The day you pass your driving test is just as nerve-wracking as it is exciting. Having the ability to drive forces you to have the responsibility to get school on time and gives you more time after school to do the things you want. Everyone knows that waiting around for a ride can be painful, but once you have the magical plastic card, you are free.

With freedom comes the choice of what you want to drive. While some don't get to choose what they drive, others work hard and save for a car they desire to have. Either way, students don't take for granted their privileges of driving to school every day they can.

Of course, your car says a lot about you. Whether you are up high in the biggest truck around or revving a low stance in your VDub, uniqueness is spread across the lot. The junior lot, commonly known as "Africa," is a jungle of its own. From Audis, BMWs, and Volvos to Toyotas, Hondas, and Mazdas, the students' car choices are very different.

Personalities shine left and right with bumper stickers, fake eye lashes, colored hub caps, and even detailed interiors. Some students take pride in their cars and all of the work they put into them. Seniors like Andrew Alicea, Sam Hunter, and Mike Nichols could tell you a little about car modifications, which they make themselves.

Whatever you drive, make it yours.

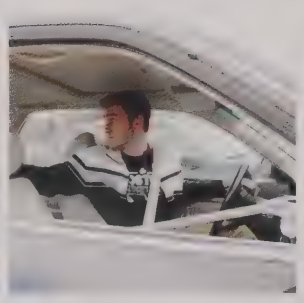
A MINIVAN WITH ROOM FOR BOOKS, GEAR, AND FRIENDS

This senior couldn't be more overwhelmed with school, a job, and swimming. Every day, Summer Walker exits the school carrying two large backpacks full of school work. "My favorite is math. I'm really good at it," she said. She's in a rush to get home and get ready for work, and she is excited to start her weekend. "I got my minivan handed down from my mom, which is cool because I didn't have to buy one," she said gratefully.

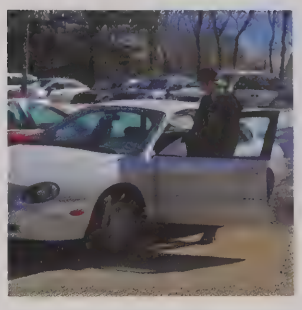
EVERYONE'S ON BOARD FOR DRIVING

WITH YOUR BESTIE
Sarah Besse trusts her best friend Dominc Reed to drive her around. They always have a good time no matter where they go!

GOING TO WORK
Senior Jared Berkley walks quickly to his car and gets in. He's in a rush to get to work and knows he will be late if he gets stuck behind the buses.



HEADING TO LAX
Here is senior Jake Farland confidently backing out of his tight parking spot. He moves his car closer to the school for lacrosse practice.



GO WITH THE FLOW
Senior Mike Bishop doesn't know what his plans are for the afternoon. He hops in his car with a full tank of gas and no destination.

APPY BIRTHDAY TO ME
or his junior year, John Vitello was surprised with a new Dodge hallenger for his birthday. It gets even better: he has a personalized ense plate saying JP83. John is shown here posting up and getting s gear for lacrosse practice. He even gave his car a name, of course. Stacy is my baby," he said.

BACK IT UP LIKE A TONKA TRUCK

Some rebellious teenagers like to show off their heavy-duty prized possessions. Senior Joey Hastings is one of those teenagers. After a daily meeting with Ms. Leigh Joesph and a friendly reminder that he parked too high on the snow banks, he bashfully grabs his keys and laughs as he moves his truck forward a few inches.

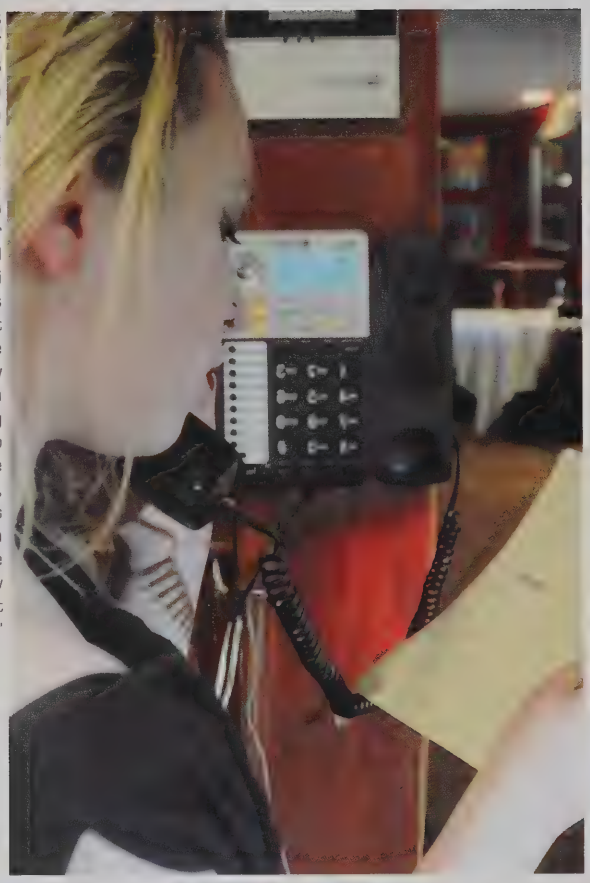
Meanwhile, senior Emily Arena decides to obey the rules and park in acceptable parking spots. She said, "I would rather back into a parking spot ... it makes me feel cool." Emily sports her green Dodge Ram 1500 with "ugly" designs on the side.

INTO THE JEEP

Senior Ben Locke is one of the first students out in the parking lot at the end of the day. He loves his white jeep with funny stickers on the back windshield. He throws his bag on the passenger seat and makes his way out of the parking lot before the buses come.

THE MANY TASKS OF A RESTAURANT HOSTESS

Being under eighteen and working at a restaurant can leave you with two choices: bus boy or hostess. Being a hostess is a very common job for girls who attend Tantasqua. Naomi Fritz reserves reservations at Rovezzi's. "I have known my boss my whole life, so when there was an opening I was really excited to work with him. The food here is amazing, and working here has taught me to work in customer service with finesse and how to please difficult people."

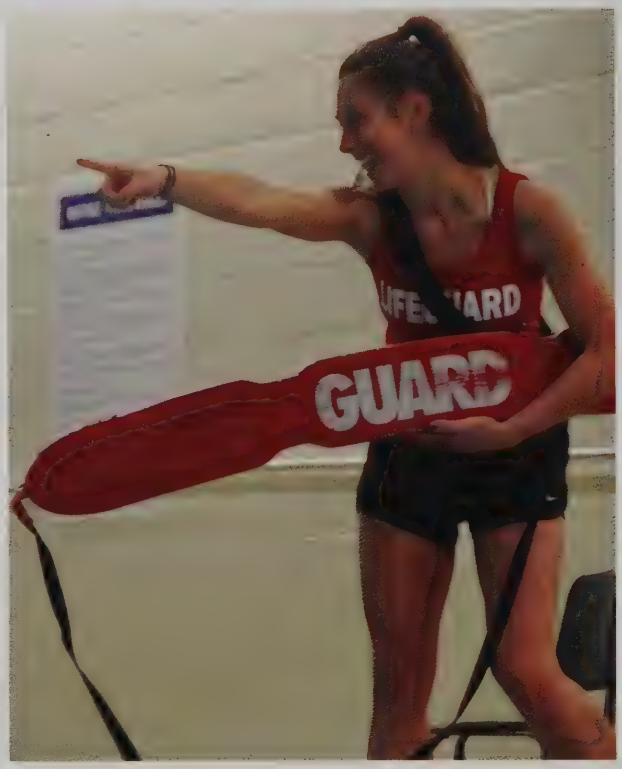


STACKING THOSE POTATOES

Most people take for granted the hard work that goes into making sure produce doesn't topple out of its stand. Here at Paolettie's in Sturbridge, Dayln Kroll diligently works on stacking potatoes. She has been working here for about three months. "I'm not planning to stack potatoes as a career but it's an okay job since carrying these heavy boxes gives me my daily workout," said Dayln.

COFFEE IS LIFE

As most students know, the Sturbridge Coffee House is a very popular spot for both students and teachers to hang out. The Coffee House is our town's very own Dunkin' Donuts, with their signature muffin tops and wide variety of coffee. Nargis Aslami has worked here for about a year and absolutely loves it. Here she makes a hot drink for a customer. "Coffee is my life, so it's hard not to love my job," she said. "The people I work with are really nice and I always get to drink coffee!"



I'M HERE TO SAVE YOU

Melanie Monteiro blows here whistle at the kids to settle down. Melanie is a lifeguard in training and has a big responsibility in watching over the little souls in the pool. Lifeguarding is a challenging job—it takes a good eye and a lot of watching. "Lifeguarding is a lot harder than it looks, and I hope to one day become a real one," said Melanie.

GETTING YOUR HANDS DIRTY
Zack Edwards puts air into a costumer's tire. Zack has been working at C & R Tire for over eight months now. Working here includes pumping people's gas, pumping tires, and running the car wash. Although he says "I love my job," Zack also says that "in the below freezing-winter months we have had this year, working in the cold isn't great." He loves talking to new people and helping them keep their cars in good condition.

WHATEVER YOUR JOB

story by Eric Ying
photos by Bridget Candelaria

There comes a time in almost every child's life when they have to start working and making their own money. Living near the hub of Route 20 guarantees students a wide range of places to choose from when deciding upon their first job. For some kids, a job means paying for their college tuition; for others, it is an opportunity to excel at what they love. Whether the students here love or hate their jobs, they are all fine examples of hard-working individuals.

HERE'S YOUR CHANGE!
Working in a grocery store in this district is a very practical job. There are over five of them in our area, and they're always hiring. Cole Gibson has worked at Stop and Shop for about eight months. He enjoys his job because, in his words, "I like getting to meet new people. Everyone that I meet is different and it gives me an opportunity to work with all kinds of people."

Project Purple gaining support
Lunch is the perfect time to reach as many students as possible, and that's exactly what Project Purple is doing as they raise money for their organization. Here, they sell wristbands to raise money for their club and awareness of their cause. People can wear these to show their support even if they aren't in the club!

This tastes good
Seniors Joey Wellwood and Eric Ying take huge bites of their lunches! As you can see from the size of his lunch bag, he isn't afraid to chow down during the lunch time. After two or three long blocks of class, students need to refuel with friends.

CHEW ON THIS!

story by Logan Nardi and Brandon Merriman photos by Brandon Merriman

Regardless of what lunch you're in, lunch is packed full of food, friends and noise. From the long waits in line to fooling around with your friends at your lunch table, lunch is a place to relax for most students. The noise is overpowering and the atmosphere is high, creating a friendly environment for the students.

One important thing about lunch if figuring out where to sit. This can be a more challenging job for some students than others. For example, freshman Camie Hall observed that "being a freshman and especially not knowing where I would sit and with who definitely added to the nerves on the first day of school."

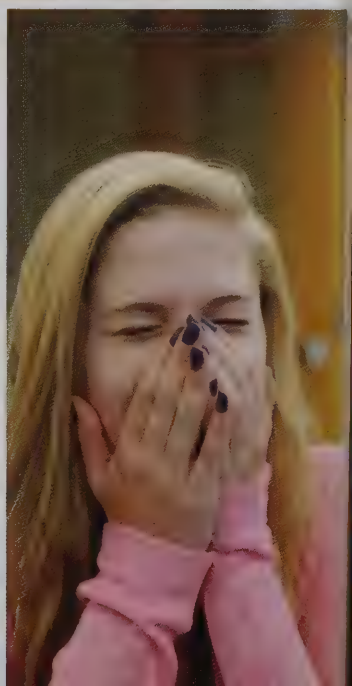
If you don't find a spot at a table, some students spend their lunch time in the library, where they can take advantage on the half hour and get some homework done.

However, most students are packed and ready to go, whether they bring their own lunches or stop at the vending machines. School lunch tastes good, but that long lunch line doesn't, so students take advantage of any alternatives.

"Bringing your own lunch to school lets you know what you are having. If you're feeling like eating something one day, you can bring it. Plus you don't have to wait when you get into the cafeteria!" freshman Abby Bedford said.

No matter what, lunch is always the highlight of students school day. And, on those days when the weather isn't too cold, students can even go outside and get some fresh air!

DON'T FORGET TO LAUGH AT LUNCH!
Sophomores Kathryn Staples and Hannah Sorensen share a good laugh during the hectic school day. "Hannah Sorensen always makes me laugh even at the hardest of times!" said Kathryn. Students all over the cafeteria are seen laughing and having a good time. "I don't know one time I went to lunch and left without laughing!" said Hannah.

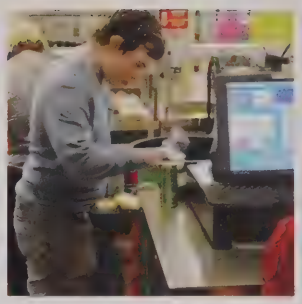


RACING TO THE LUNCH LINE

TIME TO CHOW DOWN!
Finally! Students receive their food in a mad dash, ready to eat it even before they leave the lunch line! Service is always friendly and quick, so students have time to savor their meal.

WAITING FOR THE FOOD!
Every student races to the lunch line in order to recharge for the remainder of the school day. "Lunch lines can get long if you're not fast enough," said sophomore Jesse Fiman.

HEALTHY CHOICES
Believe it or not, the salad line can get pretty long. Many Tantasqua students take the healthier option at lunch and avoid the long, dreaded chicken patty line!



PAYING FOR QUALITY
Students rush to pay in order to maximize the time spent eating and hanging out with their friends! "I can't eat the food fast enough, it's that good," said Shane Fourtier.

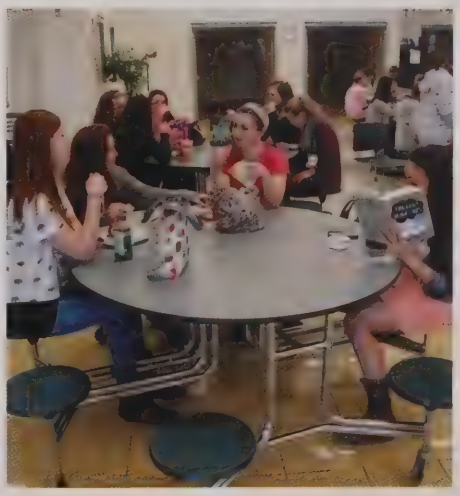
ITS AS GOOD AS YOU MAKE IT!
Junior Ricky Prouty makes all his friends laugh at the table. Ricky is known for always being the one to make everyone laugh. Jason Izzo said, "I can not remember one time Ricky didn't say something funny. It's like he was born to make people laugh."

FUN AND GAMES!

Lunch is the only time students can listen to music or be on their phones without the worry of being caught! Seniors Tyler Gratton and Mike Nicholas listen to music and chill before getting back to class. "Lunch is the only time I can listen to my music and hang out after eating." Tyler said. "I also can talk to one of my best friends and unwind before going back to class." Most students, however, are like Sarah Gadek, glued to their phones. "Thankfully, because of the WiFi in the cafeteria, I can check Twitter and Facebook before going back to class. Plus I won't get yelled at in class!" Sarah said. Lunch is a great place to check for updates and have fun!

LETS TALK ABOUT HOMEWORK?

Not everyone is glued to their plates or phones at lunch; some get much-needed homework done. Megaen Cloutier, Caitlyn Waddell, Megan DeMorris and Kaila Jackson all discuss class work during their lunch. Kaila said, "I take advantage of the time so I don't have to do it when I get home. I call it being productive!"



Face Full of Snow
Nate Geyer takes one to the face during a friendly snow ball fight outside. "It was very cold, and I had to take multiple snow balls to the face before they got the perfect shot," he said.

Christmas in the Labs
Erin Butts makes her own Christmas snow globe in chemistry class. Every year during the holidays, science classes go into the lab to make an assortment of Christmas decorations.

ENDLESS WINTER WONDERLAND story by Eric Ying and Jackson Grudzien photos by Cam Simoneau, Jake Farland, and Nate Geyer

Every year, after the leaves have fallen and students are situated in class, temperatures drop, snow falls, and winter arrives ... and stays. The student body gets excited, as the holidays are just around the corner. This means festive activities in class and the long awaited two-week winter vacation.

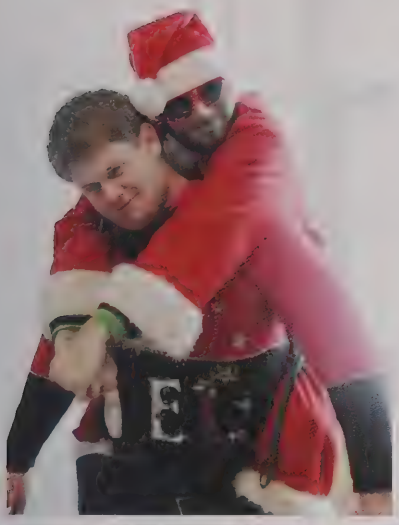
Even with the cold weather, the warm holiday spirit can still be seen around Tantasqua. Although some students, like Brandon Merriman, and Logan Nardi don't like the cold weather, others do. "I like the winter weather; it makes me feel happy when it gets close to the holidays," said Robbie Kenyon.

As vacation draws near, teachers start planning holiday activities that tie into the curriculum. Every year, chemistry classes go into the lab and make Christmas ornaments and snow globes. English classes read holiday-themed books, and foods classes make gingerbread houses and cookies.

But this year's winter stayed well past its welcome. Spring sports started with frigid temperatures and dirty snow still unmelted on the ground. Athletes complained about running in the cold, while non-athletes just despised walking in the cold. If you were to compare this winter to a person, Mr. Ken Dibiasio said it was like "a psycho ex-girlfriend that just won't leave you alone."

Many would agree that this winter has been long and hard, especially for the seniors because there has always been snow on the ground, but they don't feel like they have had their fair share of snow days. Autumn Wong said, "We should have had more snow days because the road conditions were awful." Baileigh Nauyokas agreed, adding, "Compared to Boston, the plowing in Sturbridge is terrible."

Still, students and staff made the most of the eternal winter, even if they wished it would be over.



Santa and his "Little" Helper
Sam Hunter and Bobby Law really know how to show their spirit ... Christmas spirit, that is. On the Friday before Christmas, Bobby wore a festive sweater that he borrowed from his mother. "Even though I am big, I can still be Santa's Little Helper," said Bobby. Sam went all out in a red Santa suit complete with pillow stuffed belly and some cool shades.

Let it Snow
Freshman Vienna Gilman watches the snow collect on Tantasquan roads with high hopes for an early release, one of the exciting aspects of winter.

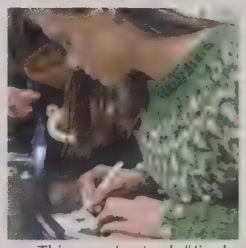
CHESTNUTS ROASTING
Senior Lauren Gerrish is in a cheerful mode as she frosts her gingerbread house. Foods classes at Tantasqua may not be roasting chestnuts during the holidays, but they do make a variety of holiday treats, like gingerbread houses. "Taking foods class senior year is a great cure for senioritis without having to do a lot of work, especially when you take it with good friends," said Lauren. Even though Foods calls is called Foods and Nutrition, they occasionally take a break and indulge with some sweets.

CHRISTMAS CONTEST
Mr. Metz held his annual Christmas Contest in class this year as students compete to see who has the most Christmas knowledge. Every year Mr. Metz and Mr. Berthiaume's classes duke it out to decide who will be the next Christmas Champion. Students in each class answer Christmas Trivia questions in a All or Nothing battle.

SWEATER WEATHER

Ashley Pecore spreads Christmas cheer in her simple red sweater and Santa hat while showing off her talent in painting class. Who knew Santa Claus could be so artistic?

Elliot Davis wears a funny sweater that stole the show. There's "snow" better way to show your holiday spirit than wearing a sweater featuring polar bears together.



This sweater took "Jingle Bells" to a whole new level. Elysia Ferrell wore a sweater adorned with bells, insuring that she would "jingle all the way..." to her next class.

WRAPPING TOYS FOR TOTS

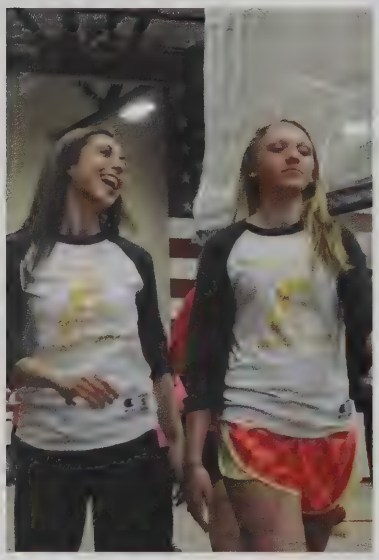
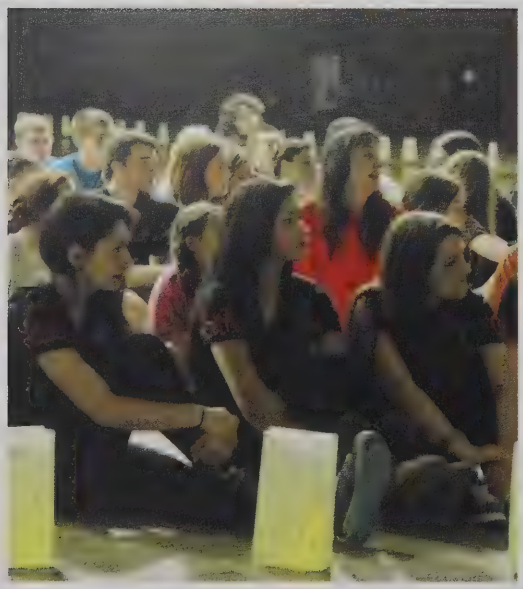
Relay Campsite
Lindsey Gorey and Kate McGee hang out at their campsite to relax from all the walking. "It was a lot of fun, and a great and memorable experience. I participate in relay because my grandfather died from brain cancer five years ago," said Lindsey.

Walking for a Purpose
Melanie Monteiro and Felicia Bouchard taking a few laps on the track to support cancer research. "It was nice seeing all the people who came to support the fight against cancer," said Felicia, who walked for her aunt and cousin.





Remembering the Fallen
Juniors Liz Croteau, Bethany Sewart, and Liz St. Pierre sit and watch at the Luminary Ceremony. Liz St. Pierre said, "My aunt had lung cancer, so it was comforting to be with others who were in the same situation."

FINISH THE FIGHT!

Relay for Life was another success, with close to 500 people attending to support the search for a cure and raise a total of $28,860.38. Kendra Iller, the president of the Relay for Life Committee, was was ecstatic that Relay was such a success this year. "Being president is really rewarding, especially when it all comes together as well as it did this year," she said. "It felt good to see all the people coming to support the cause against cancer." Cancer is a disease that affects everyone no matter who the are. Everyone needs to step up and help people who don't have the money to get treatment.

Although Relay for Life is a time to remember those who have had cancer or are still battling cancer, it is also about having a good time with some friends. Most of the people who do attend Relay were close to someone who had cancer, but some people just want to support a good cause.

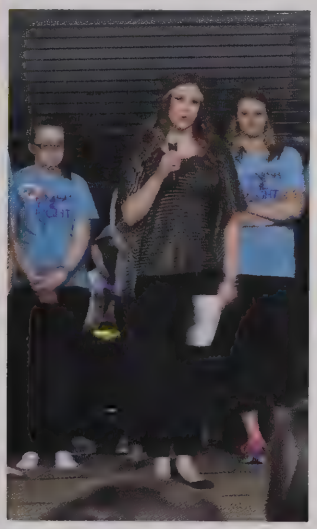
The main ceremony of relay, the Luminary, was a big success this year, with Coach Desroches and Kendra Iller's cousin Kerri Paquette speaking about their experiences with cancer and how they have dealt with it. At the end of the ceremony, everyone took the luminary lap to remember those affected, while Savannah Fitzgibbons sang "In the Arms of an Angel.

Relay mainly about supporting the cause, but it also creates a festive community of activists who enjoy the long night of fun. During the overnight, most people spend their time playing games like basketball and Frisbee in the field house.

This year, the Relay Committee put on a neon dance and 2AM dodge ball game. Both events were a big success, with plenty of people participating in them. Even though Relay is a time to remember those affected by cancer, people also are able to have fun.

Neon Relay
Here are five sophomore girls showing their neon spirit while helping to find a cure for cancer. "Relay was kind of depressing, especially during the Luminary, although it was nice being around my friends to help a little better," said Meghan Cloutier.

Speaking for a Cause
Kendra Iller's second cousin, Kerri Paquette, speaks with the participants of Relay about her journey through treatment after being diagnosed with cancer about five years ago.



Luminary Ceremony
Everyone listens to the guest speakers talk about the tough journey you take when you are diagnosed with cancer. They all crack their glow sticks to remember and honor the cancer victims.

Recognition Banner
The girls' soccer team makes their "Walking for a Cause" banner for cancer. Meaghan DeMorris stated, we made this banner to remember and support our family and friends whose lives have been affected by cancer."

AN EMOTIONAL RELAY EVENT

Payton Darger's mom comforts her as she thinks of her grandmother, who is battling stomach cancer. "My Grandmother moved in with us recently because the doctor's found six tumors in her stomach. It's been really hard going through it with her, and walking with others going through similar situations brought me to tears," she said.

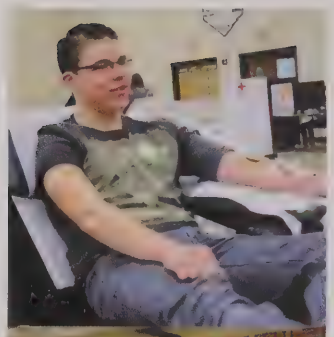
BLOOD DRIVE

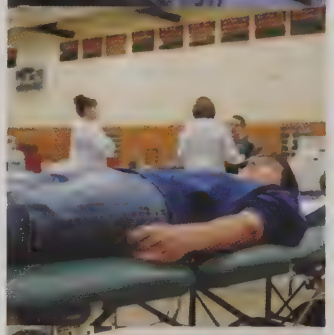
Senior Cassie Lavallee sits and wait for her turn to give blood. Cassie stated, "I was a little nervous to give blood the first time. It is a good cause to donate to, though and I want to do it."

Elijah Alonzo relaxes while he pumps blood out of his arm. "It did not hurt as much as I thought pumping blood out of myself would, I was kind of surprised," said Elijah

Senior Eric Ying gives blood for the first time. Eric said, "I was a little nervous the first time I gave blood. I would love to give blood again at a future point."

Juniors Margaret Geyer and Amelia LaMountain sit and eat food to help replenish blood sugar after giving blood. "Its a good cause to donate and volunteer for," stated Amelia





ARMS OUT, NEEDLES IN
TOP: Senior Devin Salviuolo prepares to give blood for the first time. Devin said, "I donate blood to save lives; people need blood, so I am willing to donate it. Giving blood was lot easier than I expected it to be." MIDDLE: Senior Maxwell DeCataldo was more than willing to give blood to help the Red Cross's Blood Bank. "It's a good thing to do because without doing harm to myself I can help other people," said Maxwell. This is the first time Maxwell has ever given blood, and it won't be his last time donating to the Red Cross. BOTTOM: Senior Sam Hunter is being prepped to give blood for his first time. The Red Cross nurse shows Sam how to pump the blood out of his arm. Sam said, "It was interesting being able to see my blood flowing out of my arm and filling up the plastic bag."

The Artistry Of Makeup

If Tantasqua students aren't in the halls, then they probably stepped into the bathroom to touch up their makeup or strengthen their cologne scent. To the right, Laura Polizoti applies her mascara before going to class. Laura wants her eyelashes to look dreamy for the cute guy who sits next to her in English class.

TEN THINGS THAT HAPPEN IN HALLS

story by Laura Polizoti and Bobby Law photos by Laura Polizoti, Logan Nardi, and Melanie Monteiro

10 THINGS TANTASQUA STUDENTS DO IN THE HALLWAYS

Between classes, students are given six whole minutes to do whatever they want, as long as it isn't against the student handbook. What do you do in your six minute break? These ten pictures show what students here at Tantasqua most likely do in their hallway spare time.

WELCOME TO MY CRIB

Maddie Creamer and Julie Lefebvre pose next to their festive locker. A locker is not just a place to store your school supplies, but also where you can express yourself through pictures and all types of art. You can tell a lot about people by the way that they decorate their lockers. "We like to decorate our locker around Christmas time; it is a way for us to show our holiday cheer," said Maddie.

TAKE A LOOK

Emma O'Brien takes a break between classes to catch a glimpse of the outside world. Instead of finishing homework or going to class early, Emma likes to sit at the windowsill and observe the nature around us. The few moments of reflection help clear her mind for the next class.

LET ME TELL YOU SOMETHING ABOUT MY BEST FRIENDS

Before and after classes students like to catch up with the latest gossip and talk about plans for the weekend. Alex Bowter, Alexandria Stevens, and Milisa Howard take a quick break from their busy day and chat it up on the bench outside their class. The benches located on the third and fourth floor are the "cool" spots to hang out with your friends between classes.

LOCKER PIT-STOP

Chelsea White stops at her locker. Carrying multiple books or binders around for more than one class period can be strenuous on your arms, so students like Chelsea unload the previous block's belongings and get ready for a new class.

PROCRASTINATION IS KEY

Andrew Tichy crams in his homework while sitting feet away from his next classroom. This method of completing homework is quite common throughout the the school—every day. From simple homework to studying before the big test, Tantasqua students are known for putting off their homework until the last second.

Beware Of The Red Whistle

Romantic couples take those six minutes in between classes to their advantage. To the left, Brandon Merriman and Rachel Lee spend every last second that they can in the hallway together. They will be seen hugging and lip-locking; PDAs do not seem to bother them. Coming down the hallway is Mr. Zemsky with his red whistle to warn Brandon and Rachel to save their PDAs for somewhere else. The loud whistle echoes through the halls and takes everyone's attention and puts it on Brandon and Rachel. Talk about embarrassment!

Even Teachers Run Late

What does a group of kids slowly getting larger and blocking the hallway mean? Their teacher is running late! Waiting for your teacher to come unlock the classroom may seem like a hassle, but in reality it gives students an extra minute to breath before entering another eighty-three minutes of stress. Emma Coats, Alexis Fredette, and Samantha Broskey sit and wait for their teacher to come back.

One Last Goodbye

For couples in the building, eighty-three minutes can seem like forever. Stepping out of class is like stepping into a jungle where you have to try not to walk into couples who meeting each other. Here, Weston Smith and Alli Beaudoin demonstrate the tasteful way to catch up.

Bringing The Classroom Into The Hallway

Above, students Nargis Aslami, Jake Farland, Sam Ohland, Joey Wellwood, Amanda Merrifield, Autumn Wong, Bailey N., Lauren Gerrish, and Heather Monroe compare answers in AP Psychology. Students prefer working in the halls because it's a more spacey environment. "AP Psych can be pretty difficult, but working in the halls with a group of people really helps," said Heather.

whatever makes you YOU

QUITE FABULOUS

Junior Ebony Cruz struts her style down the halls of Tantasqua and anywhere else she may go. Her eye-catching patterns and matching jewelry create a style all her own. Her flashy colors bring a life to the usually dull and muted colors found throughout the halls. She usually goes through the hallways quietly, most of the time with a small circle of friends, getting through the school day.

NO CASUAL FRIDAYS!

Casual Friday? Not for this guy. Taylor Mersfelder rebels against casual Friday by dressing up and wearing a suit. Although commonly seen as quiet and shy, Taylor has no problem standing up against people "dressing down" on Fridays. "I dress up to rebel against casual Friday," he said. "I don"t like the idea of people dressing down, so I wear a suit."

"IT'S A DROVER!!!!!!"

Eric Landry doesn't want you to call it a trench coat; rather, it's a "drover." This common misunderstanding is heard daily as people walk by this senior with his long, black, leather piece of fabric flying behind him. Most kids like to show up to school in bright flashy colors, Eric Landry doesn't need all the flashy bright colors to get through his days here at Tantasqua. All he needs is his drover.

THE DAY BRIGHTENER

Sophomore Vinny Pepper, always happy and sometimes a bit loud, makes it so he and the people around him never experience a dull moment. He always knows the funniest things to say, and you can't be in a down mood around him for long. Vinny is always either cracking jokes or laughing at them.

TWINS? NO. JUST BEST FRIENDS

It has been over fourteen years since seniors Jockamo Baldina and Tylor Sutton met, and it's been a "bromance" ever since. These two inseparable friends met on the track (dirtbike track that is) and have been by each other's side ever since. Whether they are riding was bar to bar or just hanging out, these two are always together.

AIN'T GOT NO WORRIES

Sophomore Harrison Deforge, also known as Little Harry, can be best described as a laid-back kid. He always has a goofy smile on his face and is always in his own little world. Whenever you see Little Harry in the hall, he isn't just stationary and bored; instead, he dances around the hall making the time in between class more enjoyable for his friends and the people around him.

WILD CHILDS

Freshmen Michaela Louise Tanacea and Julia Brown defiantly hold up the reputation of being a "wild child." These two clowns are hilarious and are always up to something. Michaela and Julia are both proud members of the Tantasqua cheer team and can lift people's spirits on and off the field. They are inseparable and haven't even been friends for an extended amount of time, but you can tell that they will be friends for a long time because these two bring a good vibe wherever they go and make it impossible for you to be able to forget them.

HOW TO TAKE A SELFIE

10 IMPORTANT RULES YOU NEED TO KNOW

story by Emily Arena photos by Autumn Wong, Dalyn Kroll, Lauren Gerrish, Eric Ying, Emily Arena, Summer Walker

Say cheese! The classic asking-someone-to-take-a-picture-of-you-and-your-friends photo quick vanished when the front camera was invented. Rather then awkwardly holding a camera backwards or being forced to use a mirror to take picture of yourself, the front camera allows you to take photos with less hassle. The word "selfie" comes from the idea of taking a picture of yourse though it has evolved to any situation that you us your own phone to take a picture. Watch your lighting, angles, locations, and filters and you'll be sure to take a decent selfie. Enjoy!

DON'T BE SHY

The first very important rule to taking a selfie is to t your best not to get stage fright. Why should you care who watches you make a goofy face with your friends? Take a step back and realize that capturin a funny moment is very special. Here, in the last minutes of class, freshmen Keeley McCarthy and Erika Ramsland give no care in the world about wh sees them take a goofy photo.

FIND WHAT WORKS

Everyone feels comfortable doing a familiar pose in their selfies. Here we have junior Amelia Lamountain resting her chin on her hand. This adds uniqueness to any picture. "I like to add quotes to my pictures that I post because it shows how I feel," she explained. "I feel like taking a selfie on days when I feel good about myself."

CLASSIC MIRROR PIC

Whether you're in the bathroom, in a car, in your room, a restaurant, a dressing room or even in a store ... there is ALWAYS mirror to be found. Senior John Vitello posts u in the school bathroom to take a flexing selfie. Assuming he just left gym class, JP can't miss the opportunity to capture his muscular physique.

DON'T FORGET #OOTD

"What is #ootd?" is the question you might be asking yourself. Here is the answer: outfit of the day. #ootd is a way people can show off what they wore for the day on social networks. People love the creativity and uniqueness, and it's a good idea of how to get inspiration for what to wear. Senior Emily Butler always makes sure to get a quick pic of her cute, fun, and matching outfits. "Finding an outfit is easy for me ... I just pick up something from my floor and put it on," said Emily with a serious face.

WHEN IN DOUBT...

When in doubt, don't hesitate to go to a familiar and popular pose. "Duck face and dueces" is a pose commonly known across the world. Junior Sam Domozych poses for a back-breaking selfie in the library. "I need to make sure everyone gets a good view of my beautiful face," said Sam.

STAY CONFIDENT

Don't ever stop yourself from sending a quick snapchat to your friends or someone you like just because of how you look. Chances are, the person you're sending it to won't be bothered. Smile and work the camera angles. Confidence is key when taking a selfie. Don't worry what people think.

HAVE YOU CHECKED YOUR LOCATION?

Make sure to check your surroundings. Take the time to see if where you are is an appropriate place to pull out your phone and take a selfie. Places like funerals and doctor's offices are most likely not an ideal place to take a selfie. The library, on the other hand, is perfect. Friends Emily Stansky and Mikayla Locke take a quick photo before the bell rings.

BE CREATIVE

Don't use the same angle in every picture. It can get boring when all of your pictures you take with your friends look the same. Try lying down to make the photo more alive and fun. Juniors Jenny Singvongsa and Amelia Lamountain fall to the floor laughing while trying to take a cute pic.

WARN YOUR FRIENDS

eel like its the perfect time to take a selfie? Don't be selfish ... think about our friends. Let your friend know that you are about to take a picture so e or she can prepare. While some photos are funnier if they are in the noment, most people like to be ready. Seniors Maddie Creamer and Nick edszwekis pose for a selfie during some downtime in the library.

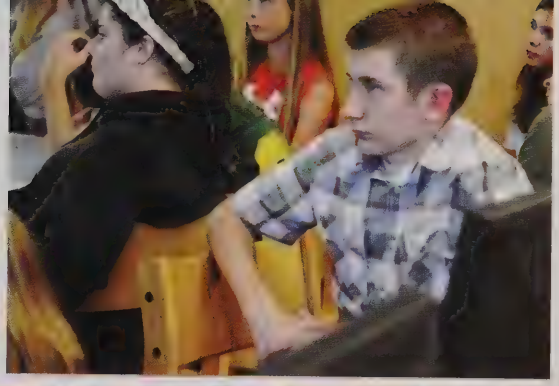
EVERYONE KNOWS ABOUT FILTERS

Having a bad day? Don't think you look quite "right"? Add a filter to your selfie to set the tone of your photo. The color can say a lot about your mood. Dark, sad, mysterious moods could be represented with Mono, Tonal, Noir, or Fade. Fun; happy, exciting moods can be shown through Chrome, Process, Transfer, or Instant. Feeling daring enough? Try using no filter. Don't forget to remind everyone on social networks with a simple #nofilter. Senior-crowned "Most Likely to Take a Selfie" Emily Arena smiles with friend Victoria Austin and tries to choose an appropriate filter.



Although Ms. St. Jean's class initiated the Skyping event in the library, other students attended also. Freshman Jared Worth was one of the students in attendence.

Sophomore Nastasha Cass-Evans turns around and talks to her friends, waiting for the author to start talking.

story by Joey Hastings photos by Wayne Barr and Narissa Tremblay

Think the library is a place to read books or search for research topics? Not so! As technology becomes more advanced, teachers and students are finding more ways to uses spaces like our Wilson Media Center to reach out into the real world.

For example, English teacher Ms. Holly St. Jean met with her class of students in the library after school to Skype with author Gillian King. Students had read her short story "The Dead Kid," which is about a boy named Frankie who crawls into a refrigerator at a dump. He gets locked in and goes missing for months, until a trash collector finds him. Later, the unnamed narrator is dared by two neighborhood bullies to go back to the dump and find a refrigerator just like it.

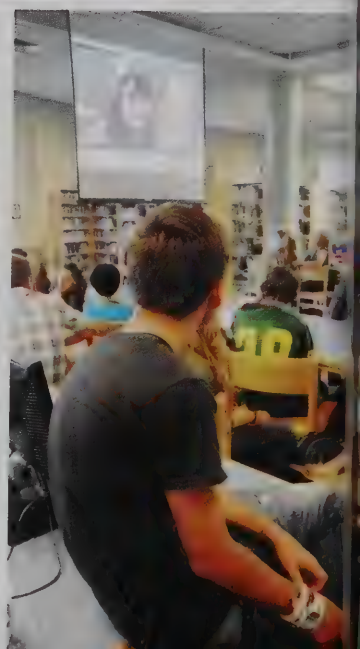
The idea for a larger project came from Ms. St. Jean's association with an editor of "Carve," a literary magazine named writer Raymond Carver.

"I put in a proposal with NCTE for using a literary magazine to bridge writer/reader communication," said Ms. St. Jean.

As part of the pilot program, students read the story in class, generated questions to ask the author, then began interacting with King by asking questions through a blog and email.

By the time students were Skyping in the Media Center, they had written journal entries, answered writing prompts, and were ready for a friendly conversation with the author they'd read.

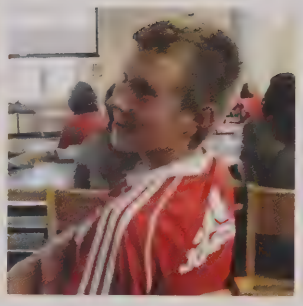
After school, a Skype connection was established with author Gillian King. King spoke with students about her writing habits, inspiration, and plans to write a novel someday. Meanwhile, students asked questions and shared their own writing with her.



WRITERS AND READERS MAKE A CONNECTION

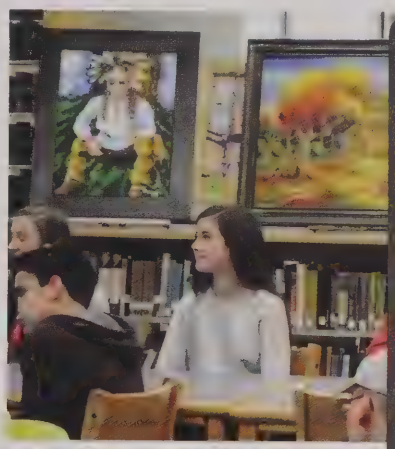
SPEAK UP!
Freshman Matthew Langevin talks up and asks the author some questions. "Meeting the author was really interesting and learning about how being an author was also interesting."

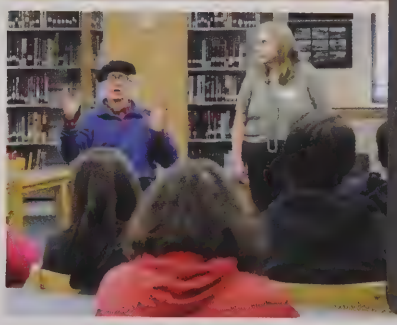
KEEP LISTENING
Freshman Matthew Simmons listens intently to what the author has to say. "I had a really great time hanging out with my friends after school!" he said.



TIME FOR DISCUSSION
Freshman Colton Pellicane turns around to say something to his friends about the author. "The author gave me a lot of insight about being an author!" he said.

LEANING IN
Freshman Julia Brown leans over to listen to the author better. "I really hope Tantasqua does something like this again, I had fun!" she said.





MEET THE ARTIST

Artist Ginette Mcveigh came to the Wilson Center, where her art was exhibited, to present her masterpieces to students. "All I've ever wanted to be my whole life, since I was four years old, was an artist," she said. "I have spent my whole life working as an artist and I just love it. I really like bright colors and enjoy putting together colors that people wouldn't think go together to show them how beautiful the unexpected can be." Mcveigh is also a wood carver, and is currently working on a totem pole that showcases native animals and plant species. Her husband frames her pieces. "He is really supportive of what I do," she said. She told students students to find passion in their lives. She touched upon the importance of putting your personal passion first, and she stressed the importance of finding your passion and pursuing your dreams.

Freshmans Kevin Brady, Alyssa Kievra, and Juliet Lunden drink their refreshments before the author gets onto the video-chat.

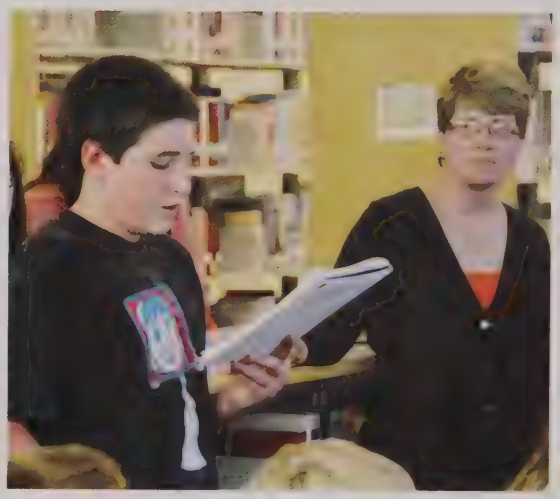
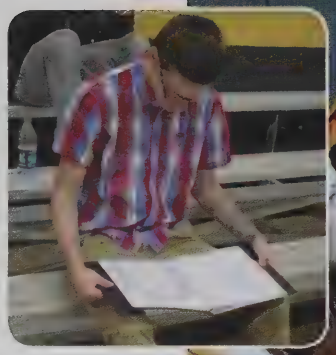
READING TO THE WRITER

Freshman Gino Placella shared some of his own writing with author Gillian King. Gino read a journal assignment about what he would do in an enclosed space like the one Frankie had encountered.





Playing The Role
Junior Anthony Ferraro is looking and playing the role of a nerd while studying for one of his classes. "Spirit week is always a fun time," said Anthony.

It's Nerd Day?
Even though it looks likes Michael Damon may be dressed up for nerd day, he wears a tie everyday and needs to wear glasses, so this outfit is not out of the ordinary for him.

Goodbye Warrior Spirit
Seniors Grace Devlin, Dakota Haddad, Karlee Kemp, Emma Thorpe, Maddie Creamer, and Nicholas Beudry celebrate their last high school spirit week by getting out of their class and making a pyramid!

SHOW YOUR SPIRIT!

story by Summer Walker photos by Emily Arena, Morgan McCarthy, Narissa Tremblay

Spirit at Tantasqua is bigger and better than ever this year! Every single grade participated and went all out with the theme of that day.

First was nerd day, with people wearing glasses and suspenders. Next was decade day, in which people revisited the trends of the 60's, 70's, and 80's. Next you could wear your red, white and blue on American Pride day to show how much you love the USA. On Mardi Gras day students broke out their beads and masks. Finally, to end the week, was class color day, which is the day to represent what grade you are.

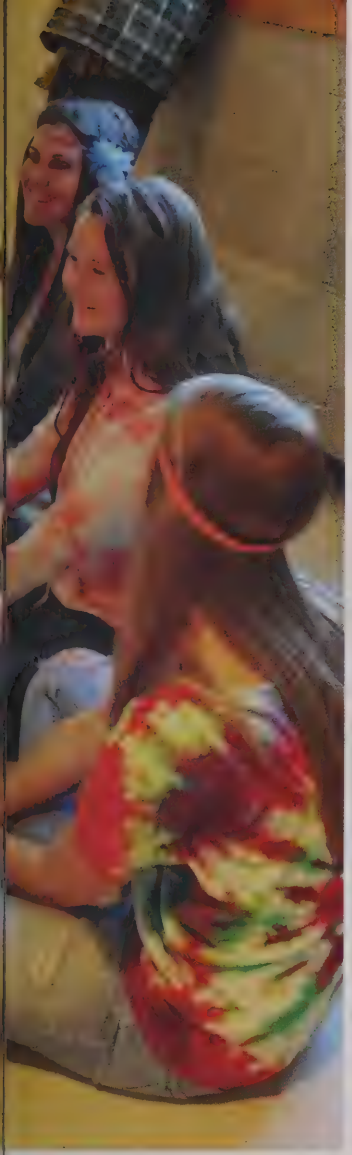
To end the week the United States Army band came to play for the students in the auditorium. Everyone got to relax and let go and just rock out to some great music! Junior Kristine Kholstrom said, "It was a great way to end the week and was nice to take a break from my tough junior year classes." School Spirit week is well known throughout Tantasqua as being a time of camaraderie for all students.

Whether you decide to participate in school spirit week or not, you can see that the sense of school pride is unprecedented in comparison to any other time of the school year here at Tantasqua.

Junior Savannah Fitzgibbons said, "I always participate in school spirit weeks; you can always see me going all out from face paint, hair dye and crazy clothing that would put most other people to shame."

Other school spirit week participants this year, like Adina Pellot, said that "School Spirit week should be a time where everyone participates, and I always do because it's a fun way to relieve the stress of our classes."

As a dedicated student body we must all take initiative and participate in the week of festivities to show our school spirit and what it means to be a student at Tantasqua.



Hippie Circle
History teacher Ms. Lavalle is leading the famous 60's hippie circle outside her classroom before classes start on the decade day of spirit week. "I always enjoy showing my school spirit and seeing everyone else's clothing choice," said sophomore Jimmy Reyes, who was a part of the circle.

Seniors Have Spirit, Too
Senior Alyssa Edmonds shows her Warrior pride in a very interesting way. She has her senior class shirt, black tutu and even black eye pant under her eyes! "Since it was my last spirit week, I wanted to go all out!" said Alyssa.

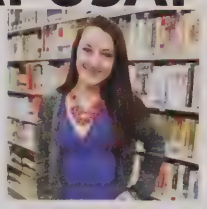
American Pride
Seniors Morgan McCarthy, John Rowley, and juniors Erin Ferreira, Elizabeth Elliott, Hannah Leo, and Shane Fortier show their American Pride by wearing red, white, and blue on this spirit day.

Giggling Hippies
Sophomores Alison Beudoin and Lindsey Gorey are psychedelic 60's hippies during decade day. The girls played the role really well by dressing and acting the part.

WHAT IS YOUR DECADE?

Seniors DeAngela Galonek dresses up in her 60's hippies outfit with her long skirt and headband, while senior Meredith Hunter-Mason wears her 80's work out gear with her leg warmers and high pony-tail. "Being class president, I love to show my school spirit and try to get everyone to participate," said DeAngela.

USA! USA!

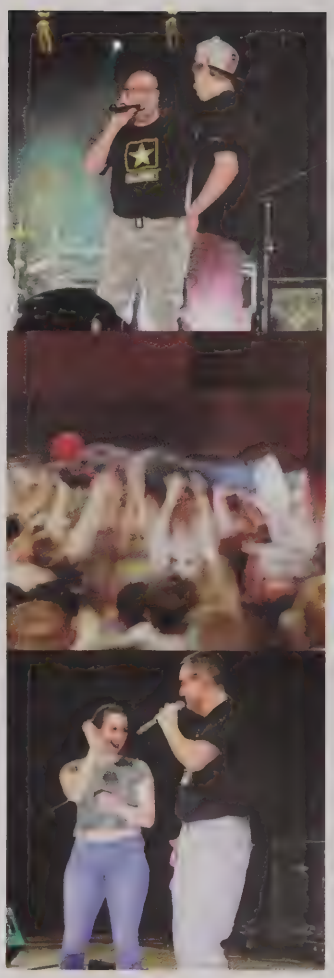


Junior Amelia LaMountain gets her American spirit in gear by wearing a nice blue dress and a red necklace.

Teachers have spirit too! Mr. Dobrowolski and Mr. Metz are showing April's America-inspired word of the month, which is "Patriotism."

Senior Anthony Wood loves America so much he is going to fight for America because he joined the United States Army.

English teacher Mr. Berthume goes big with his American pride with a red and white plaid shirt and nice tie with the American flag on it.



The Volunteers

TOP: Junior Brian Allain gets called up on stage to do a dance competition against other classmates. It's a good thing that there were no winners because his dance moves were questionable. "I had a lot of fun going up and stage and doing the bernie," saids Brian. MIDDLE: The Volunteers are a Uniter States army band that plays old school rock and roll and even a little rap. They rocked so hard that there was even some crowd surfing at the end of the show! "It was a lot of fun and cool to see the students and some faculty come together to see the show and have a good time," said Brandon Merriman, who was at the show. BOTTOM: Junior Victoria Blair is about to give the army singer a high-five after showing her awesome dance moves. "It was exciting to be a part of the concert and dance beside my friends. It was an experience I'm not soon to forget," said Victoria.

SCHOOL SPIRIT LIVES ON

story by Bridget Candelaria and Bobby Law
photos by Melanie Monteiro, Bridget Candelaria and Maddy Mayberry

Tantasqua is home to the Warriors, countless sports teams, an awesome student counsel, and tons of after-school clubs. Here at Tantasqua, we students have so many reasons to celebrate our school. In the past few years, to the naked eye, it may seem that school spirit has disappeared along with pep-rallies, but, if you look close enough, you will still find some!

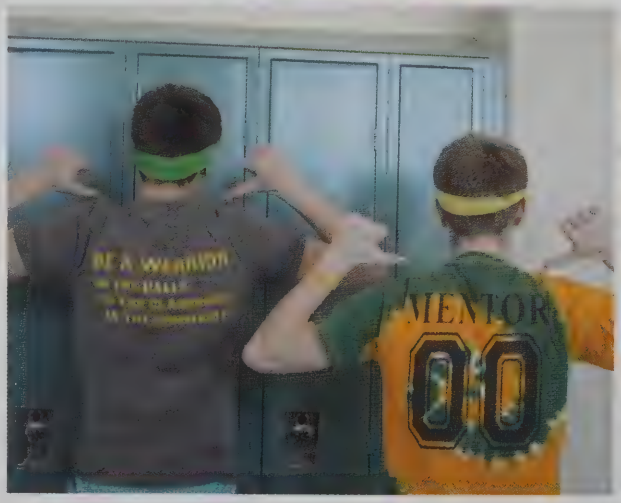
Together, our school bleeds green and gold, but each class also has an individual color. The different colors allow each grade to compete to show who has more spirit. Seniors wear black, juniors green, sophomores yellow, and freshmen white.

Showing pride for athletic teams and events really boosts athletes' confidence. Winning as a team is one thing, but winning as a school is even better!

"If you ever get green and gold clothes from your parents, and you don't know what to do with them, you can wear them for Spirit Day because, normally, those might look bad, but on school spirit days everyone loves you for wearing them," said Luke Gerrish. Spirit to other students means showing pride for their school, not just a chance to wear non-matching clothing.

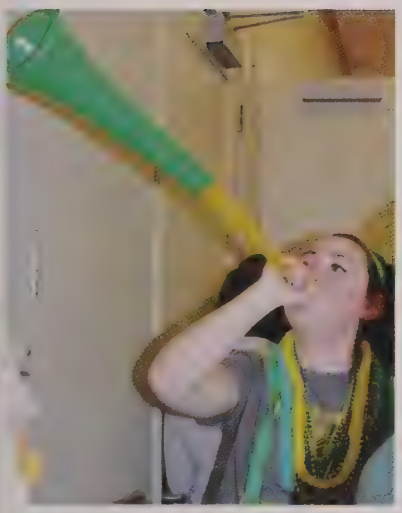
School spirit is defined as emotional support for one's educational institution. Whether you are like Luke and dress up for fun, or dress up simply to support your team, you are still participating in Tantasqua's tradition of school spirit. So, Tantasqua, what does school spirit mean to you?

A Picture Is worth a Thousand Words
Alexis Freitis screams from excitement while decked out in Tantasqua gear. Alexis said, "Go Tantasqua! I love showing school spirit because it allows me to express myself and participate in school spirit at the same time."

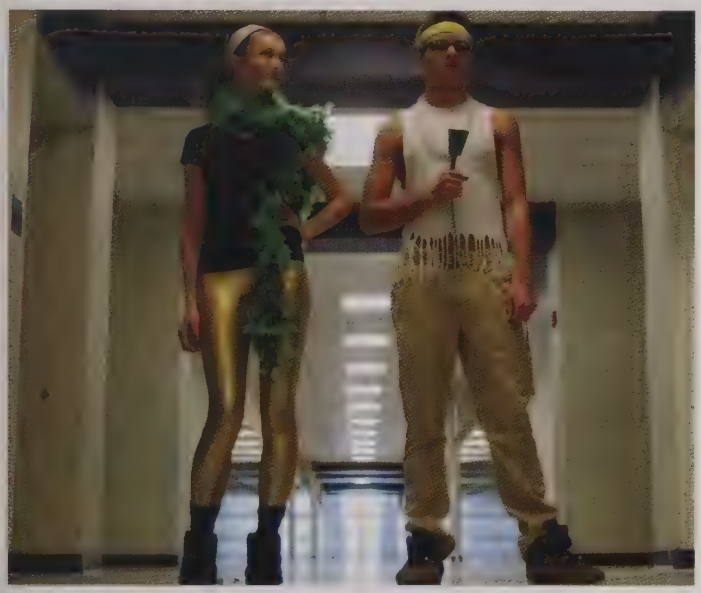


Sophomore Class
Jesse Gillete and Jordan Choquette pose for a picture to show off their guns and school clothing. The sophomore color is yellow. Jesse's shirt shows that being a true warrior is "in the halls, in the classroom and in the community."

Freshman Class
Being a freshman isn't easy, as many students would say. One way to get through your first year of high school is by participating in all of the school activities, including spirit days. Best friends Riley Jones and Brooke Galonek put their hands in with other friends while wearing their class color, white. Brooke said, "Our class color is good to wear on spirit days because we're proud to be freshman."



Blow That Horn
Sophomore Elizabeth Adams blows a noise maker for student counsel. From her headband to her necklaces, she is all decked out in Tantasqua gear. Liz always participates in school spirit days and encourages Tantasqua students to do so also. "Representing our school and being a true warrior is what it's all about," Liz said.



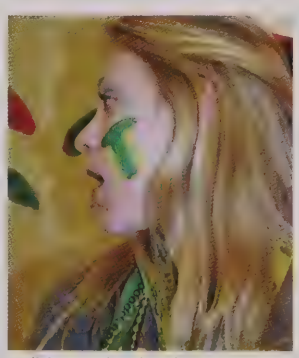
Junior Class
The Junior class color is green. Here, Elysia Farell and Tyler Cave wear gold and white to accompany their green accessories.

Dressed in Pearls
Senior Bobby law has no shame in wearing pearls around his neck to show school spirit. Bobby enjoys wearing headbands on regular days, so sporting one for a day like this is only part of his wardrobe. Bobby said, "It's hard to carry the whole schools spirit on my back, but I do it anyway." Although this statement isn't entirely true, Bobby still does a great job at supporting Tantasqua.

ATHLETES SHOW THEIR PRIDE

Most school spirit around our halls is related to sporting events. Since the student body shows pride for our athletic teams, it's nice to know that they also participate in the fun even when the spirit isn't directed towards them.

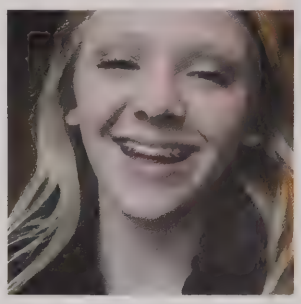
JP, a senior football player, poses for a picture while he wears classic green and gold. "I bleed green and gold," he says.



Felicia Bouchard rocks green eye brows that compliment her golden hair and the Tantasqua T on her face.

SCHOOL SPIRIT PROFILES

SENIOR
Samuel Hunter represents the senior class by dressing in black on all spirit days. Sam said, "It's just fun dressing up."

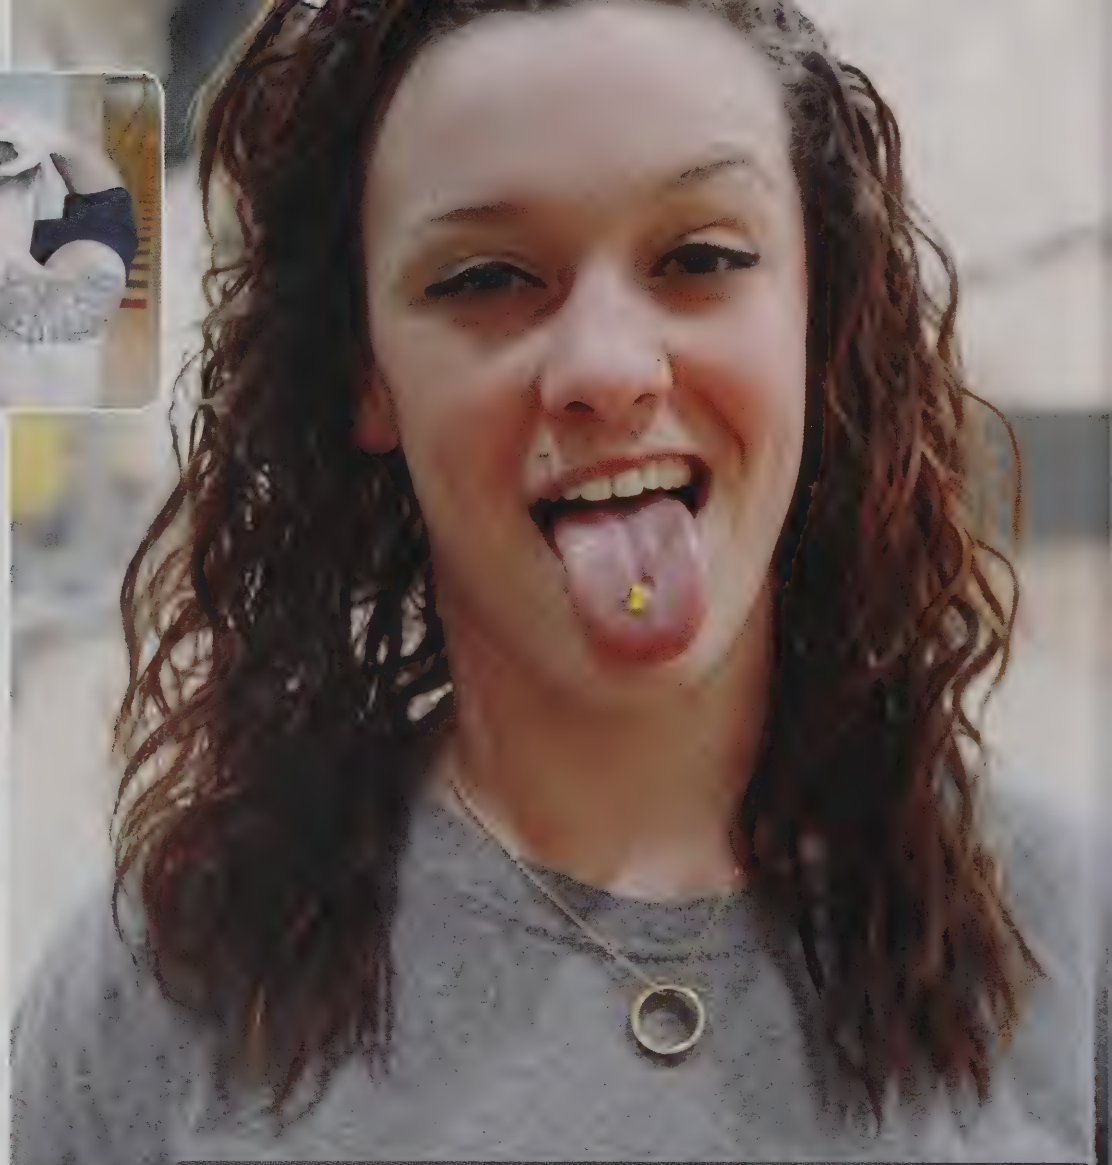


JUNIOR
Felicia Bouchard is always trying to convince the junior class to support Tantasqua. "It feels great to be Tanty prideful," she said.

SOPHOMORE
Grace McHugh said, "School pride creates a more enjoyable environment to learn."

FRESHMAN
Luke Gerrish brings style to spirit days, being part of the ever stylish freshman class. Luke says "I'm high on spirit."

Mike Nichols
Mike didn't have a reason for this huge tattoo other than "just wanting it." This brand new tattoo represents his family. He has other tattoos and wants more. Mike says he already has another appointment.



Tylor Sutton
You may have seen this tough looking senior around school. He got matching tattoos on a road trip with his mom and sister. He loves his tattoo because his family is most important to him.

Kayla Buck
This sassy senior has a very sentimental tattoo representing the day her dad passed away. In Roman Numerals, the date is June 19, 2013. "It hurt most on my collar bone, but I might get more," she said.

BODY ART & SELF EXPRESSION

Some people express their personal style through clothes, hair, and accessories; others, however, like to explore their identity through body modifications. Whether they have tattoos, unusual piercings, or even makeup, people try to find unique ways to represent themselves.

While choices of piercings, clothes, makeup and hair color can change and evolve, tattoos are a permanent and powerful way to express yourself. Some of these bold students here at Tantasqua have chosen to make the life decision to ink their body.

Though some want to stay simple with only one tattoo, most crave the exhilaration for the next time they can experience the consistent scratching, prickling feeling. Most interviewed about their tattoos described their experience of getting tattoos as "once you start, you don't want to stop."

People often get tattoos to add some excitement to their lives and because they are bored. This works because they can look back to the exact moment they got the tattoo.

However, there are people who put much time and thought into the meaning of their tattoo. That usually can make the person feel like their tattoo is more special and important.

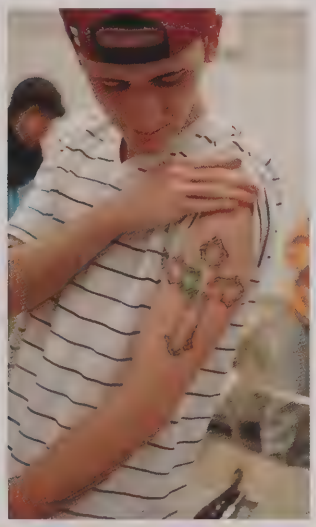
Meanwhile, piercings are interesting because you have the options to change them whenever you'd like. Whether it's slowly stretching your ears, or getting quick piercings, people enjoy the rush of it.

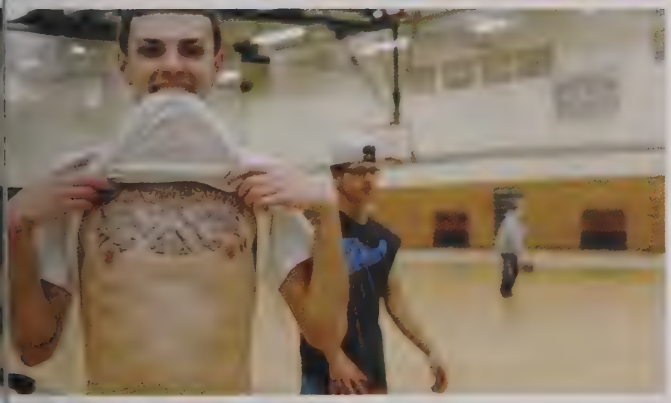
Not ignoring the fact that fashion is a major way for teens to express themselves, we just find that certain body modifications can make a bigger difference in someone's uniqueness.

So, fellow Tantasquans, make sure you think wisely before making bold decisions with your skin. Those marks of self-expression will be with you forever!

Cierra Pellot
This sophomore is very into her body modifications. Rather then tattoos, she'd rather the quick adrenaline rush of a piercing. She has her nose, monroe, tongue, belly button, and her ears pierced. "They make me ... me. I feel naked without them," said Cierra. She loves all of her piercings and wants her back dimples and her chest dermals done.

Keith Fannon
This swagged out junior is not only about his friends and looking cool... He also cares about his family. He got this tattoo with a cross and the Ireland Flag for his parents, who are both from there, He says he hopes to get more in the future.





Anthony Ferarro
"Fear none but God." A few years back, this crazy kid thought it would be a good idea to copy a rapper's tattoo. "I was young and dumb," he said, laughing to himself. Anthony kind of regrets getting this tattoo.

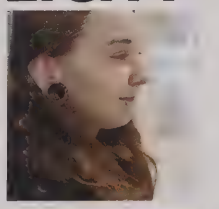
Kailey Feeney
Anyone who knows this senior would know her love for cats. A few months before this tattoo she lost her cat. These are his actual paw prints. She has three other tattoos, and wants many more!

EVEN THE CLASS PRESIDENT HAS ONE

Senior class president DeAngela Galonek may be the last person you would guess to have a tattoo. She has a very meaningful dove representing peace and faith. Her mom and sisters all have the same exact one. "Its a daily reminder to get through every situation that life may throw at me," she explained. She said she would get another tattoo only if it meant a lot to her, like this one does.

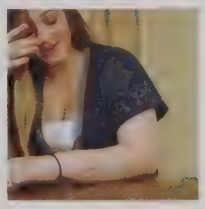
SIMPLICITY

Victoria Putnam
This quiet senior didn't have much to say about her plugs besides "it looks cool." She is at 1 inch and doesn't think she'll go bigger. She's wanted them since she was 14.

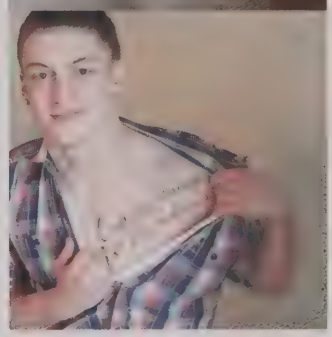


Samantha Thomas
This junior's tattoo says "Guardian Angel" in Arabic. She said she met a medium who told her she has someone watching over her.

Carolyn Jenkins
She has this simple cross that she got out of boredom. "Yeah, I feel like it looks like it's a cool spot on my arm" She has two others and plans to get a few more.



Cassidy Wetnicka
Cassidy can spend an hour doing her makeup."Its how I express myself " she said, batting her fake eyelashes.



DEEP AND MEANINGFUL, OR SIMPLY WHIMSICAL?

TOP: "I got it because I wanted to..." this quote basically sums up senior Sam Macero's tattoo. He claims he put no thought into it, but plans to play off the idea of the Cat in the Hat. He can see himself expanding his small tattoo into a full Dr. Suess leg piece representing his childhood.
MIDDLE: Senior Dominic Reed has this infinity tattoo with an anchor mixed into it. "I refuse to sink" is the quote. He got it at Block Island and it represents friendship and gives him motivation. This tattoo, he says, really does mean a lot to him.
BOTTOM: Junior Trevor Robert went out on a limb and got his tattoo for his 17th birthday. "Count your blessings, not your problems" is the simple but elegant meaning of this tattoo. "Everyone takes things for granted ... they don't realize what they have," he said. He added that the tattoo was very painful, but he might get some more when he is a little bit older.

HOW to deal with STRESS

10 Different Ways Tantasqua Students Deal With Stress

story and photos by Morgan McCarthy and Elizabeth Elliott

We all have different ways of dealing with the stress of high school. There are a lot of different things to stress about, like getting into good college or next week's final exam or big game. High school is a stressful time in life, but it's all about the way you deal with stress that makes high school a little easier. The way we deal with stress is a way we express ourselves and makes us who we are. So, take a deep breath because you're going to get through it.

Laugh it Off

Freshman Maddie Doherty and her class had a good laugh when she came into class with a torn-up book her dog had chewed up. That's right: Maddie's dog actually ate her homework. "You just have to laugh about it instead of dwelling on what happened," said Maddie. Luckily, her teacher found the incident funny, too.

Go into a New World

Senior Emily Canavan takes a break from stress by entering a new world. Reading is a great way to learn about new people or places and is a healthy way to de-stress. Even better, teachers admire you for doing it!

Workout Your Problems ... in the Weight Room

Junior Anthony Ferraro says that the best way to relieve stress is to go to the gym. "Working out is my alternative to being upset," he said. "I'd rather go work out and get my mind off whatever is bothering me than sit around while my stress gets worse."

Count your Blessings
Chelsea White, a senior this year, has a unique way of dealing with the stress of her last year in school. "I just need to take a minute and think about all the blessings that I have and pray," she said. This way of dealing with stress is a big help when you're feeling down about a bad grade or getting rejected from your top school. Think of all the good things in life and remind yourself that it's not so bad.

Find a Sibling to Talk to
Emily and Lizzy Elliott are two opposite kinds of twins. But, when they are together, they laugh a lot and forget about their troubles. "I have a lot of anxiety when it comes to test time, and Emily is always their to help!" said Lizzy.

Check out Social Media
Senior Morgan McCarthy says that the best way to deal with stress is to take a break and see what's going on around you. "I like taking a break to relax and read what's going on with my friends and family," she said. These quick visits via Facebook and Twitter can help ground a stressed-out student.

Take a Quick Power Nap
Brandon Merriman and Summer Walker are taking a breather from school work. "I have long days sometimes, and it feels good to lay down and rest," explained Summer. Ben added, "School becomes hard, so I take every chance I can to get to get some sleep."

Music Calms the Nerves
Junior Savannah Fitzgibbons knows the power of music. "Listening to music is a great way to take your mind off of your problems and relax," she said.

Sometimes You Just Need to ... LET IT GO
Senior Drew Nascembeni's way of dealing with stress is watching movies. One of his favorite movies to watch while he's stressed is the new Disney movie Frozen. "When I feel the stress of the world, I watch Frozen, and I am able to take my stress and just 'let it go,'" said Drew. With friends Robert Kenyon, James Simpson, and Logan Nardi also use Frozen to de-stress

Do Some Art!
Sophomore Tyler J. Marengo says the best way to relieve stress is to draw."Drawing calms my nerves when I get stressed or anxious," he said. Tyler is carving in Mr. Stephen Metcalf's class, where he was clearly stress-free and relaxed.

Congratulating Each Other Friends Keely McCarthy and Elise Hankis laugh uncomfortably about standing in front of the entire freshman class as they receive awards alongside Lily Lucas, Jacob Luke and Brooke Galonek. This group received awards for most involved.

Pointing Out Winners Anita Swift points to her friend when her name is announced to win an award. Many students often get shy when their name is announced because it's often unexpected, so Anita decided to be funny and embarrass her friend.

CELEBRATING THE FRESHMEN

story by Tristen Dupuis & Aliyah Gaskell photos by Melanie Monteiro & Maddison Mayberry

The freshman assembly is a fairly new concept in Tantasqua, having only started two years ago. Assistant Principal Mr. Peter Dobrowolski came up with the idea as a way to transition the freshman into high school.

He wanted the awards to be given based on GPA, but Guidance Counselor Mr. Anne Marie Flannigan wanted it to be based on nomination by teachers for the categories of Most Improved, Most Involved, Most Helpful/Dependable and Most Service to School/Communtiy.

A form was sent out to all teachers telling what the student must have done to qualify for the award. According to Ms. Flannigan, "some students were nominated for more than one award, or were nominated for the same award by more than one teacher, so they were put into a category of super freshman."

All of the frehsmen were brought down to the cafeteria, where they sat while Mr. Dobrowolski announced awards by category and congratulated the students in groups.

When the awards were given out and everything has settled down, the freshman were rewarded with a little party. They were treated to snacks and drinks, along with some much needed down time to just talk to their friends.

When asked about her thoughts on the assembly, freshman Anita Swift stated, "It was really fun to see your friends walk up to get their awards. It created a unity between the freshman, and it was a cool bonding experience." Other freshmen agreed that the event helped create a feeling of class camaraderie and pride.

Mr. Dobrowolski claimed that the school had experimented with different ways to the freshman into the transition into high school, and that this assembly seemed to really work well and it has become an annual thing in Tantasqua tradition.

Listen Up!
Mr. Peter Dobrowolski tries to get the attention of the freshman class during the assembly in a more serious manner. Many of the freshman get excited to be out of class and start to socialize with friends rather than pay attention.

Get Involved!
Mr. Dobrowolski hands Madison Doherty an award for most involved along with another award as well. Many of the freshman got more than one award for a variety of things, ranging from most improved to awards about academic achievements. After handing out the award, Mr. D shakes the students' hands and congratulates them.

(Mostly) Paying Attention

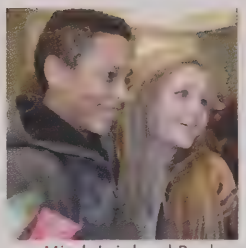
Freshman pose for a group photo, after receiving an award. According to Bella Sibley, the award was for most improvement, which was an award that seemed to be given to many of the freshman to encourage them to work harder and achieve success throughout the rest of their years in high school.

HANGING OUT



Micah Laird and Bradyn Darger socialize with friends after the assembly. According to Micah, it was a really fun time to "hang out with your friends."

Nicole Kurilov and Sarah Williams laugh as their picture is unexpectedly taken at the end of the assembly.

story by Margaret Githui and Summer Walker photos by Serena Blasco and Margaret Githui

In a typical day you expect to open textbooks, read poetry, solve math problems and make chemical reactions, but you wouldn't expect art class to turn into a chorus room. "It is a laid back class, and sometimes when we are working on projects the teacher will put on some music and people will start singing along," explained senior Mike Wrona.

"Getting to paint finished projects is my favorite thing to do in pottery because I get to design it," said junior Lizzy Elliott.

"We learn how to use different clays based on the different sculptures that we are doing" said junior Shelby Domingue.

If you decide to take an art class you can choose from print making, pottery, painting, small metals, drawing, sculpture, and fiber arts.

Students enjoy taking art classes as an elective because they get to be creative and socialize with their friends. " You don't have to be a good artist, just have an open mind," said junior Serena Blasco.

Art classes are less stressful than academic classes. It's a good way to relax in between your classes. You don't have to worry about falling behind, and you can work at you own pace.

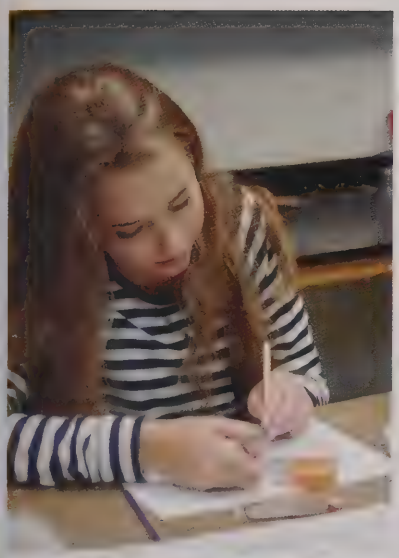
"I never really have to worry about falling behind in this class; most of the time every one is working on something different," said senior Abby Carr.

"We get to work with expensive compounds like silver," said Anthony Zola. If you like jewelry, small metals is the right class for you.

Most girls choose small metals as an art elective because they enjoy wearing jewelry, so they think that it will be cool if they can make their own.

In art classes people get to be themselves and not be judged on how something looks, because the work they do is their own, based on what they like. Even students who aren't great artists get to express themselves.

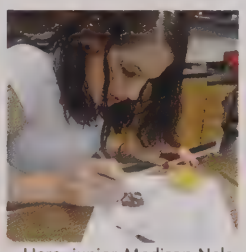
SILVER, GOLD, AND FIRE



Getting Creative
Sophomore Madeline LaFlamme is busy being creative as she makes a tile in small metals. She looks very concentrated on her work, and she does not mess up.

Making Gifts
Sophomore Kyle Jordan is making a sentimental tile for his mom in small metals. "My mom is obsessed with frogs for no reason," he explained. "She likes collecting anything that has to do with them. So I'm making her a frog tile as a present."

With care and precision, sophomore Ben Rickson is hammering out his ring to make it perfectly round and just the way that he wants it.



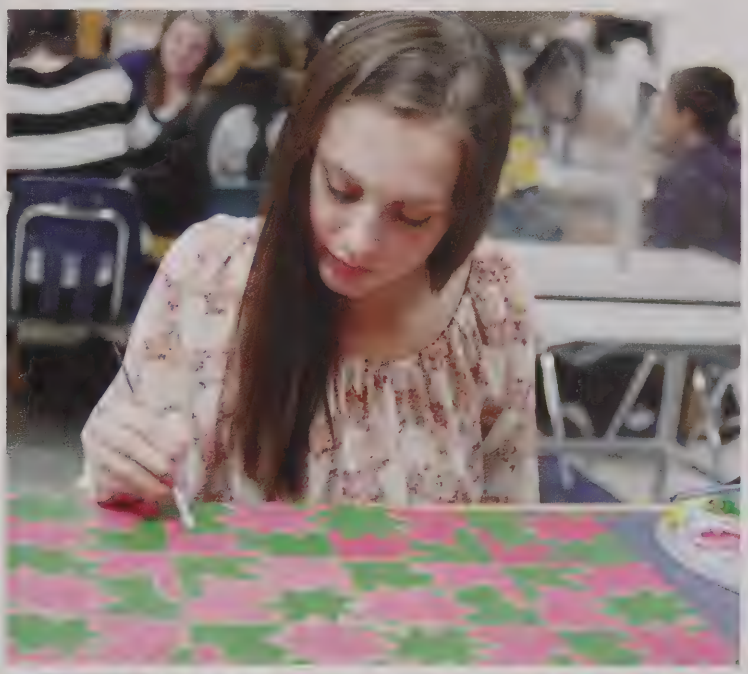
Here, junior Madison Nale is painting on the finishing touches to her art work. Painting it a yellowish gold color will look very nice.

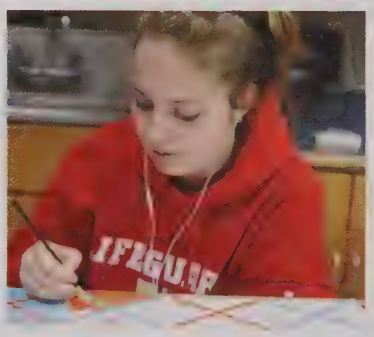
Steven Hernois works carefully during the small metals class. Maybe he can give the jewelry to a special girl or family member.

Culture through Art
Senior Abigail Carr is making a candle holder. She is carving the edges of the project to make it smooth, just the way she wants it. "My favorite part of this class is getting to design things out of clay," she said. "It is difficult at times when I am on the wheel because it can get tiring, but with time I got used to it." She is taking the class because she enjoys learning about art and how different cultures express it.

Sculpting with Friends
Junior Lizzy Elliott is molding a bowl. "I really like painting the finished products; the hard part is having to assemble what you're making and making sure it is the right shape. This is a good class for anyone even without experience; you get to have fun and socialize."

CAREFUL STROKES OF THE BRUSH





TOP: Junior Christie Arena is concentrating on putting on her finishing touches to her picture in her painting class. You can tell just by that painted picture that she is talented in the class. BOTTOM LEFT: Senior Emily Hall is also in the painting class. Painting is a very relaxing thing to most people and most people really enjoy it. BOTTOM RIGHT: Sophomore Dallas English likes to listen to her music while she paints. For most artists, the music will give them their muse as to what they should do.

SCIENCE AND MATH

story by Brandon Merriman and Logan Nardi
photos by Bobby Law

Though math and science often come hand in hand here at Tantasqua, the only thing keeping them apart is the third floor. The math and science teachers are always willing to help the students out and try to make learning as easy as possible. When asked, sophomore Aaron Kingman said that the best thing about the science classes are the teachers.

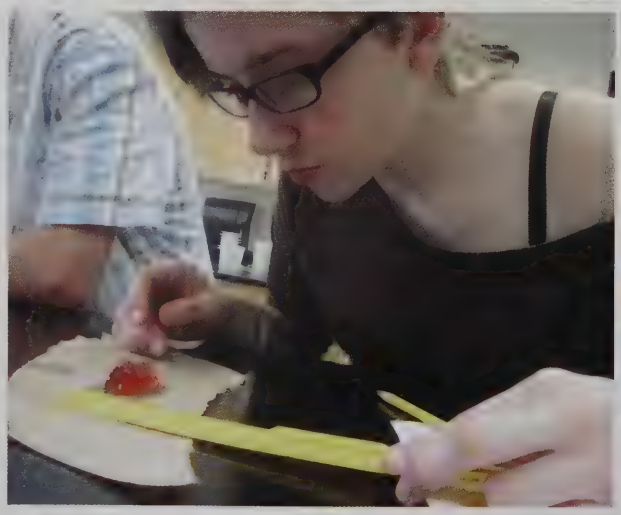
"They make learning fun and easy, from biology to chemistry, the second floor is teaching it all" Mrs. Foley said that "biology is hands downs the best course offered at Tantasqua." Other courses, such as physics, biology, environmental science, chemistry, and conservation, are popular, too.

Exploring microorganisms, igniting chemical reactions, and discovering compounds are only a few things students do in science classes! "Learning about the body and how it operates is my favorite thing in anatomy," said senior Laura Polozitt Students discover how the earth works scientifically, exploring the unique ways and science works.

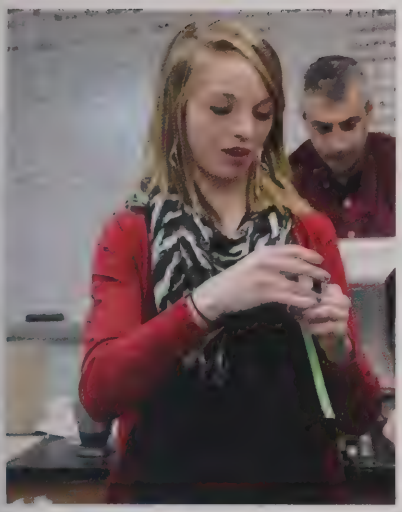
Common wisdom, meanwhile, says that everyone dreads math—but this isn't true! Senior and intern Summer Walker said, "Math is my favorite subject! Who could hate it?" Although it's apparent that math is not everyone's favorite, students get through it and look forward to something better, like lunch. Of course, math is very helpful, and students realize this, striving to get a passing grade and finish the course.

Don't Get Burned!
Sophomores Kelly Austin and Griffin Moore are testing PH levels in certain acids for chemistry class. This is one of the many labs students can look forward to in the class. When asked how he was liking the class, Griffin responded by saying, "I love the class; though it's a lot of class work, I enjoy the hands-on aspect, too."

Playing with food
Experimenting on food is something you don't normally do in any science class, but here students tested gummy bears to calculate how many calories they contain—without reading the label!



Microscopes or micro-problems?
Looking into a microscope for the first time can be very interesting to say the least, but discovering that there is a whole world practically living there is astonishing! Students are always excited to use the microscopes in class and always discover new things.



What is this?
Junior Rachel Lee tests to see if the element is and acid or a base on the indicator. "In Chemistry we always do labs. I can't remember a day we didn't!" Rachel said. She continued to say how the labs were always exciting and different.

Lab work
Juniors Taylor Lloyd and Leanna Malone test substances in beakers in order to find the element they're searching for. Taylor said, "The sciences are always my favorite because you are given the freedom to explore and discover things on your own."

Safety first
Junior Jessica Wrigil take the normal safety precautions before starting the lab. "Wearing the ridiculous goggles, long aprons and constantly being aware are just a few of the safety measures you have to take in a lab," Jessica said.

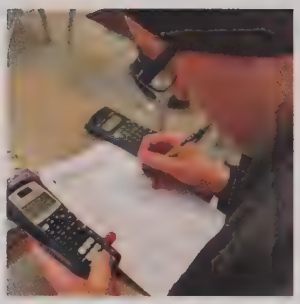
EXPLORING OUTSIDE

Many students take enviromental for one reason: to go outside. Experiencing the fresh outdoors and learning how people affect the environment always drives students to take the class. "The class is fun because you get to go outside and get out of the stressful school atmosphere!" senior Brandon Merriman said.

Senior Mark Beaumont takes control of his field studies class and instructs them about their new project.

Senior Jess Luke stabs the Earth to get a soil sample to see the different horizons in the dirt. "Environmental is fun, and I love going outside, so it's the best of both worlds!" Jess said.

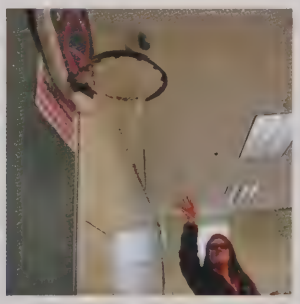
CALCULATE THE FUN



TWO CALCULATORS?
You can't have too many calculators in math class—there are many functions and operations to figure out!

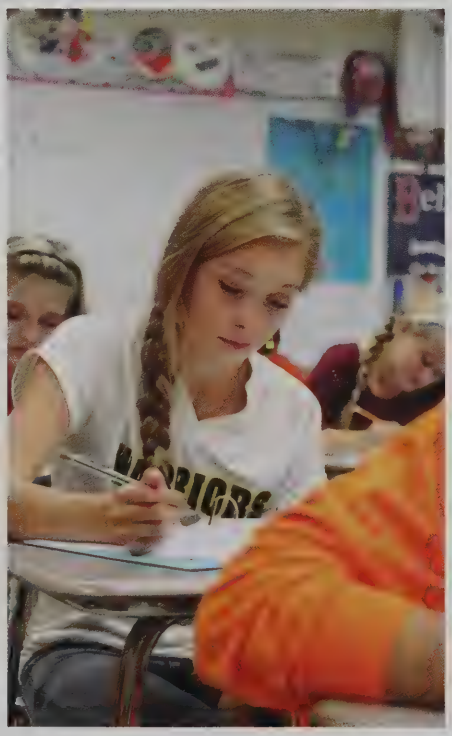
WHAT'S THE ANSWER?
Senior Mike Nichols asks Tyler Gratton if he knows the answer to a problem. Group work is helpful!

GROUP WORK
Working in groups is always a favorite in math classes. Working in groups allows the students more help without asking a teacher.



MATHKETBALL
Carly Cousins has two ways to study for a test: making flash cards and playing the fun review game mathketball!

... OR WHAT YOU WILL Students in Shakespeare read Twelfth Night and discuss tactics that William Shakespeare used in his plays. The students agreed that his language is by far the most interesting part.



LEARNING ABOUT OUR PAST Freshman Camie Hall starts working on her daily assignments in history. "History isn't one of my favorite subjects, but it's still fun to learn about our past," Camie said.

BEYOND IMAGINATION

story by Logan Nardi and Brandon Merriman photos by Sean Cusick and Brandon Merriman

This year, history and English have taken a big step towards creative thinking and applying it to classroom activities. History implemented activities such as classroom debates that led students to express their opinion on current or past issues. English let the students dress up to fit the parts of the time period and act as different characters to engage them in the subject at hand. Students could feel at ease and express themselves in an open and welcoming environment.

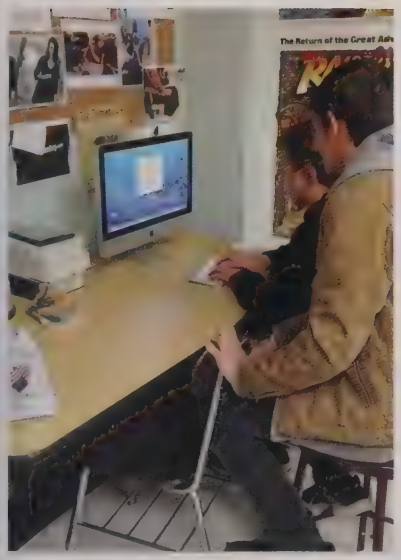
There was a huge increase in the amount of students taking AP Language and AP History. Students tend to shy away from AP classes, but in reality they are fun and entertaining if you are up for the challenges. Students felt encouraged to take more rigorous courses, and this is where the creative thinking was happening.

AP Language students analyzed close readings and adopted games like tag into their activities. AP History created created raps lyrics in order to describe the Amendments and Constitution.

In the Shakespeare class, the students were allowed to let their creative side come out by performing skits and acting out the plays. THey also played games to help them understand the difficult language more easily. The students gained a better understanding of the plays and forever cherished their time learning.

History classes approached debates as a way to compare and contrast current and past events. Sometimes they could get loud, but students took away a great deal of information on the the different viewpoints of opposing sides.

The freedom to be creative was a major goal in both departments and was achieved. Because of this the students then participated more actively and enjoyed the class more than waiting for



Not all about books, we use computers too!
Sophomore Oscar Appleton and enior Mike Laclaire use the computer to finalize their movie project. "Taking what we learned from the books and creating movie-like projects is a lot of fun!" said Oscar. The class enjoyed the fun environment and the creative freedom.

Cross-dressing
Juniors Trevor Synder, Trevor Roberts and Brendan Sacerdote act out Macbeth in British Literature by taking on the women's roles! Wearing wigs and talking in high pitched voices added to the sense of character and the liveliness to the scene.

Freeze pop!
Juniors Savannah Fitzgibbons and Ellen Butts partake in a Shakespeare game, Freeze Pop! Here any student can freeze the play and add props to the scene that the students have to use. Savannah recapped on first semester, saying, "I always came to class knowing I was going to be doing something fun and exciting every day!"

Monkey on my back
Seniors Mike Lacaire, Devin Salviuolo and juniors Ellen Butts, Carolina Blanchard and Savannah Fitzgibbons are taking part in Mr. Sean Cusick's fun Shakespeare game, Monkey on my back. Here the students carry a person on their back while reciting their lines. The person on the back then "acts natural" by making hand gestures like a normal person. Ellen Butts said, "Mr. Cusick always developed new ways to make Shakespeare fun and I loved it!"

POWER OF THE IMAGINATION

Class discussion is a major part in history. Here, the the history class gets into a big group discussion about recent events to start the class.

Jeremiah Sciaraffa works independently on his classwork. "I work independently on my history work and get it done, so I have the rest of class to hang out," he said.

Bella Sibely asks her classmate for help on her classwork. "Knowing I have classmates that can help me is always reassuring," she said.

THE SHOW MUST GO ON

People always dislike Shakespeare, but that definitely wasn't the case for me!" MIDDLE: Juniors Amber Thayer and Zach Hamel implement a Star Wars battle in Shakespeare! "I love using props to act out Shakespeare; it makes it more fun," they both said. BOTTOM: Seniors Anna Scuillo, Brandon Merriman and Mike Laclaire take to the stage and perform their favorite Shakespeare scene!

GOT MUSCLES?

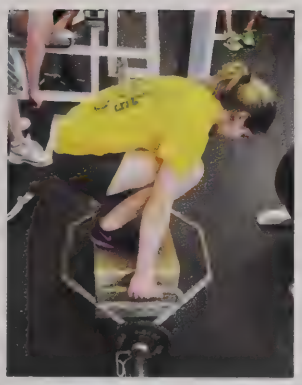
Sports fitness is an advanced form of regular physical-education for those who want to stay in shape in the off season or improve their physical skill in general. This year, many students had signed up to take Sports Fitness, a course for any boy or girl student who wants to improve his or her physical ability as well.

This class is like no other in the school. You have to show up and give your absolute best, because less than that is unacceptable. Mr. Robert Casaceli, the instructor of the class, believes the effort is worth it. "Taking this course has so many advantages; it can help someone further themselves in athletics, and it teaches kids how to work together and build a strong work ethic," he said.

Sports Fitness benefits you no matter what sports team you are apart of. From wanting to improve your distance in cross country or your drives in golf, to helping your explosiveness off the blocks in track, this fitness course can make a big different. All of the coaches highly recommend that their athletes participate in the class during the off-season.

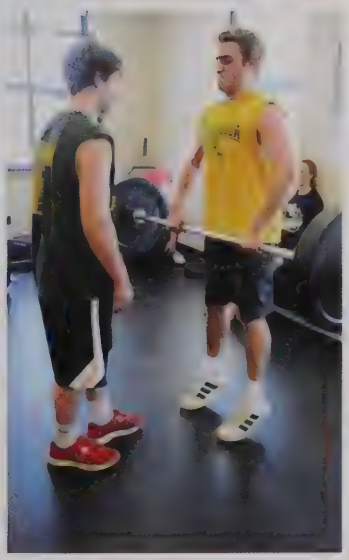
Mr. Casaceli is the one who encourages kids to take the course, and lets them know right away that this class is no joke and you will work harder than you ever have. Sports Fitness is a class that helps build character and makes you find yourself. Working hard everyday and giving it your all is what Mr. Casaceli preaches, and it is the definition of this course.

PUSH IT TO THE LIMIT
Senior Tyler Gratton puts his all into getting 225lbs up on the bench. No matter where you start out in weight, if you work hard you will increase no matter what. Tyler is a member of the football team.



GIRL POWER
Senior and runner Cassie Lavallee is having a blast while doing some straight leg deadlifts. "I love sports fitness and working out with all different athletes," she said.

MAKING PROGRESS
Junior Maddy Mayberry is wowed by the progress that Bobby Law is making in Sports Fitness. Maddy is a member of the soccer and track teams. Bobby is a member of the football, track and lacrosse teams.

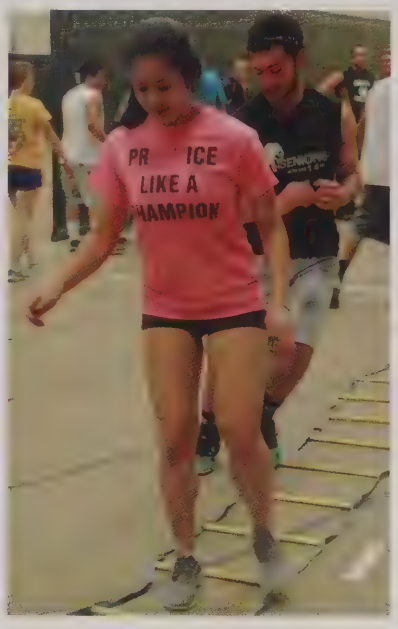


THE MASTER
Mr. Casaceli gives junior Scott Phillips advice on his technique so he can achieve a better lift. Cas is always giving people advice and tips to make them better.

MAXING OUT
Senior Jake Farland is working on his full body explosiveness by doing low cleans. This is the hardest of all exercises in sports fitness, and it takes a lot of work to perfect the technique. Jake is a member of the golf and lacrosse teams.

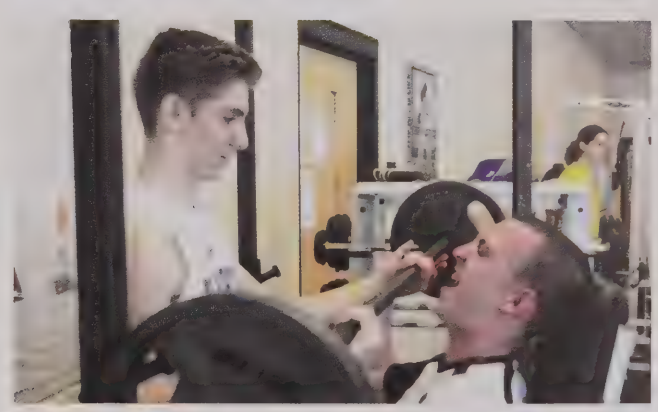
IT'S NOT JUST ABOUT THE IRON

Sports fitness is not just about lifting weights, it's about becoming the complete athlete. You also go through an intense cardio workout to improve your speed and explosiveness such as, ladder work and core exercises. Some kids get more out of the cardio exercises in sport fitness than through the weight lifting.



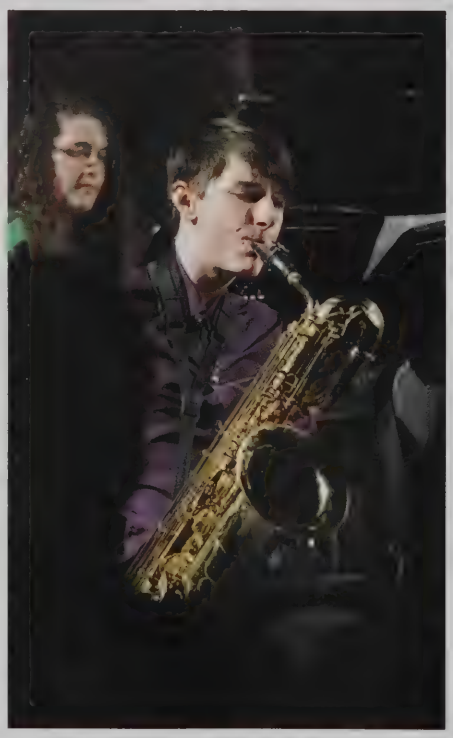
THROUGH THE LADDER
Everyone travels through the ladder in a synchronized pattern, 5 patterns are done each class to improve everyones foot speed.

STEP AND CHEER
Junior Jenny Singvongsa shuffles through the ladder. Jenny is a member of the cheerleading team.



LOVE YOUR SPOTTER
Sophomores Jordan Choquette helps Sam Knox as he puts in his all to get up a good set. Spotters are essential parts of the lifting program because you have the trust in them to help you with your lift. Jordan is a member of the football, track and baseball teams. Sam participates in baseball.

WE ARE FAMILY
Sports fitness is like no other class; you build a a kind of chemistry with your classmates that you cannot find anywhere else. "Through working out everyday and watching kids get stronger, it feels sort of like we have become one big family," said junior Sam Domozych.



Smooth Sounds Junior Danny Gould plays the saxophone in Tantasqua's annual winter concert. Danny also plays the clarinet guitar and bass in Jazz band, concert band, marching band and the "pits" for show choir and all school musicals. When asked what he enjoys most about investing so much time and effort in the school's music program, he said "I love it because it's challenging and no matter how much effort you put in there, there is always something that can be improved on."

THE MUSIC NEVER ENDS

story by Ashley Dubrey photos by Dan Gould

Choraleers, Vocal Jazz, Radiance, Encore, Concert Choir, Concert Band, Jazz Band, Show Choir, Pit Band, Marching Band—there are simply so many musical groups that make our music program incredible.

The music department is home to many award-winning students who are both talented and dedicated. They put in late nights, early mornings, weekends, and other countless hours to develop their skills and hone their performing abilities.

The finished product that is finally seen on stage is only the very peak of months of time and effort. "I can't, I have rehearsal" is a very real excuse for students in the program, which has won over 19 awards this season based on singing, dancing, musical instruments and more.

Some students even decided to pursue a musical degree in college after being part of such a tight musical program.

Mr. Reagan Paras, the chorus teacher, has been with us for six years now, and teaches chorus class and most after school clubs. Mr. Fazio, meanwhile, teaches the Jazz band.

No matter what day you stay after, there will be at least one group warming up their voices and instruments for that night's rehearsal.

When all the lights go off in the school, you are sure to see the glow of the music suite, filled with the hustle and bustle of rehearsals, voice warm ups, drum solos and conversations about plans for their next competition. Our music suite requires dedication, hard work, responsibility, teamwork and countless hours. But at the end of the day, when the curtains draw back, the spotlight hits the stage, and Mr. Paras raises his arms to begin conducting, all the blood sweat and tears come together to create a masterpiece.

Toot Your Horn
Chineme Onwubeuke plays the trombone at the Winter Concert. Chichi is in many musical groups and is very dedicated to them all.

Side by Side
Mr. Paras is famous for his hands-on approach to all of the music classes he undertakes.

Calling Mr. West ...
Senior Justin Esiason solos on the trumpet in the Winter Concert. Justin is a dedicated member of the Jazz Band. He has a lot of experience in performing jazz music. "I want to get signed by Kanye West and write Trap music for a living," he said.

State House Concert
Tantasqua's "Choraleers" perform for Governor Deval Patrick and other state representatives at the Massachusetts State House, where they are orchestrated by music teacher Mr. Paras.

EYES WITH PRIDE

Senior Claire Campbell, Drum Major, conducts the Marching Band show. This year, the band played selections from the hit musical West Side Story.

Color Guard is also an important part of the marching band. This year, they also formed an award-winning Winter Guard and went to many competitions.

Senior Justin Esiason plays his solo in the marching band field show. Justin has been a dedicated member of the band since junior high and is a leader within the school's music groups.

Watching the Pieces Come Together
Senior Trevore Ceredona is using his electric hand saw to cut some wood for the addition that they are putting on a house. "We have been working on the addition for a while now; I'm glad to see it finally coming together," said Trevor.

Melissa Palmer is having some fun with her work as she smiles while she uses the electric hand saw. Melissa talked about how much she likes working on the job site—it's a chance to get out of the classroom, off campus, and work outdoors.

OUT ON THE JOB

story by Jackson Grudzien photos by Jackson Grudzien, Eric Ying, James Simpson

With only four people taking carpentry this year, it was hard for them to do a big project again. This year, seniors Melissa Palmer, Trevore Ceredona, David McWilliams and Andrew Rosario worked on a putting an addition on to a house in Sturbridge.

"It's nice having only a few people in carpentry because we get more hands-on experience," stated Trevore. In this class, since there aren't many people, you get a lot of one-on-one attention with the teacher. You can learn a lot more this way.

Although some people like having a small class, others would disagree. Like David, who said, "I like having a few close friends in the class, but when you have a small class it is hard to do a big project." This year, the carpentry class is focusing on smaller projects, instead of building a whole house.

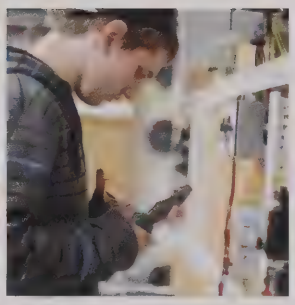
Even though they are not building a house, it still takes a lot of time and effort to get the addition right. The class goes to the site every week from Tuesday to Friday from B block to the end of the day. They have been working on this project all year and they are still working hard at it as the year comes to a close.

After graduation, David and Melissa both want to continue with this line of work. "After I graduate, I want to restore old houses in Holland," said Melissa. David also wants to restore houses after graduation. With all of the practice they've had out in the field, these students are sure to have the success they want when they graduate.

Carpentry Should be for Everyone
David McWilliams looks into the saw so he can get the correct measurement for the cut. David has always liked carpentry. He has always thought that carpentry has been an underrated class. He thinks that more people should take the class because they can learn a lot by taking it. "Carpentry is my favorite class; it is the main reason why I stay around Tantasqua," said David.

SHOCKING GOOD WORK IN ELECTRIC SHOP

MAKING A PLAN HERE IN CAPS
Warren Zellenic is working on his blueprints. "Electrical has done many different projects over the course of the year," he said. "Each project starts at the drawing tables before they can actually do any work.



MENDING WIRES
Senior Mike Bishop is mending wires in the classroom. "I like working in the classroom; there is a lot of room to get your work done, and you get to spend some time with some cool people," said Mike.

A GOOD LEADER
When the electrical class goes out to the job site, teacher Mr. Mansfield makes sure that his class gets thorough instruction, and he makes sure that his class knows the task on hand.

WORKING ALONE
Evan Sanderson is splicing wire. Evan sometimes works by himself. "Sometimes I prefer to work by myself; I can get more work done that way with no distractions," he said.

Measure Twice, Cut Once
Trevore Ceredona uses the electric saw to cut his way through a solid piece of wood. As Trevore cuts the wood, he makes sure that he has the perfect line so it fits on the house perfectly. If the cut is not absolutely perfect, he will have to redo it. Trevore said, "It gets frustrating when you take so long to do a cut and it turns out to be just a little too big or too small".

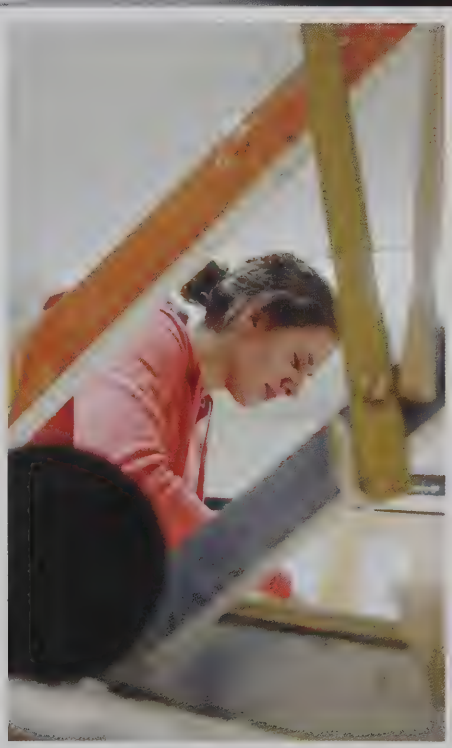
HARD WORK GETS THE JOBS DONE

The Tantasqua electric department has been rumored to be filled with the hardest working kids in the school. Day in and day out, they come into class and they are ready to work. "It's a tough class sometimes; you have to come in every day and give 100% effort," said Warren Zellenic. Jockamo Baldina said that the teachers make you work for your grade. "This isn't a class that you can slack off in. You have to work for your grade, but in the end it pays off because you end up learning a lot in the class," said Jockamo. Even though the Electrical class does not get much recognition, they still have to come in and work hard and come prepared for anything each day.

PRACTICING IN CLASS

On the wiring board, students can practice the techniques they'll need for when they go out into the "real world" to earn money. Like the carpentry students, students in electrical also visit job sites, so it's important that they be grounded in the basics!

Caught in Concentration
Junior Mike Damon is in deep concentration as he uses his computer to work on an on-line based project for the CAD class.



Making the Cut
Junior Lindsey Gravel diligently makes a measurement to be able to accurately cut part of the model of the bridge she helped design.

COMPUTER COMPETENCE

story by Robert Kenyon and Sam Domozych photos by Sam Domozych

In the Computer Aided Design and Computer Technology classes, students learn how to use and be proficient with computers and programming. Whether they are taking the class as a single academic block or as a tech program for a trade, there's a lot they have to do. It is a highly recommended course to take if you are looking for a job in computer designing or if you want to be an engineer.

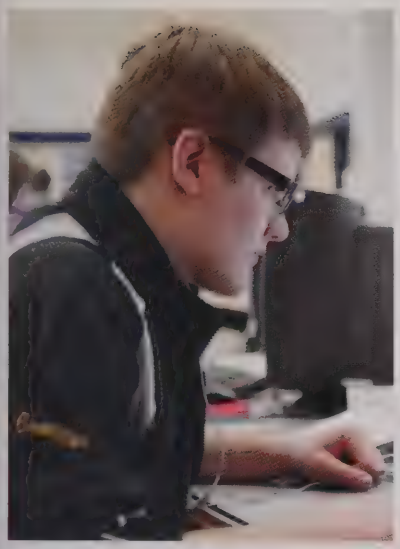
In CAD you learn how to make building, bridges, or anything you could put your mind to. You can then take your design and make it a reality by creating small models of the object you just created.

The major project that all students get excited for is the Bridge Project. The students take weeks designing their bridge. They can choose the materials they want to use and start creating their final product. This is one of many fun products that the people in the CAD look forward to every year.

All students who take the CAD program boast about how fun it is to design 3D models. "CAD is a great class to take if you lack the skills needed to be good at a computer. This class is a perfect class to learn the basic of the computer," said CAD student Thor Pulsifer.

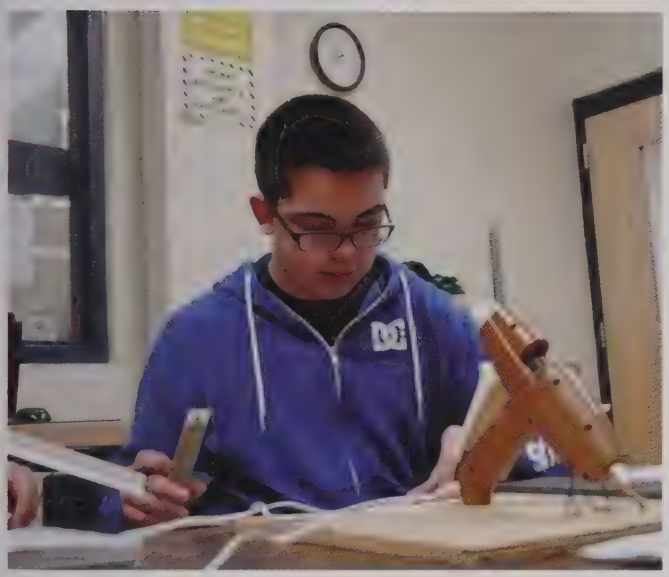
Thor's opinion matches many of the students who are taking CAD as an elective. Taking the class as an elective means that you will only have this class once a day. If you take this as your tech trade, you have the class two blocks as a junior or three blocks as a senior.

Many students agree that if your are interested in becoming an engineer or being in the business of computer design, this is the class will help you develop your skills. Mike Damon said he planned to use the skills he learned in CAD to a career later on in the future. He'll be well prepared when he does.



Digital Construction
Brandon Beaulieu works at his computer to construct a digital version of a real life object. "I really like working with the computers in this class." says Brandon.

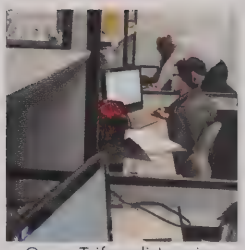
Taking Tech
Issac Torres measures out a distance , so he knows how long to make his bridge. "The tech program is a great option for those who know what they already want to be in." Said Issac, "CAD is a fun class even just if you take it as an elective."



Measuring for Perfection
Joey James measures out the length of wood he is about to cut for his bridge project. "CAD is a good class to take if you want to be an architect," said Joey when asked about the class.

Teamwork makes the Dream work
Isaac Torres and Lindsay Gravel converse about the size and distance they desire to make their bridge. "This class gives real life tasks for engineers, which I hope to become," said Lindsay.

COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY



Owen Trifone listens in as he is taught about various things computers are able to do. In the back Mr. Tranter helps another student.

Travis Curboy puts to work the knowledge he about programs on the computer. "This is a great way to learn about computer usage, and to do homework once you finish your assignment, he said.

John Ingemi uses his computer to get a lecture on how to use certain programs for computers. "This class has taught me a lot about using computers," said John.

COMPUTER AIDED DRAFTING

"There is a multitude of things that you can create in CAD, and the spinning top is the coolest one to make!" BOTTOM: Colby Devurger uses his computer to draft a design for a house. WHAT'S COOKIN'?

story by Gabby RoJulfo photos by Brooke Gaspari, Christina White, & Eric Browski

Culinary is a tech division program that most students enjoy to take mostly because of the delicious food they make. The students get taught how to prepare the food and how to use different utensils for cooking. Once they go through their lesson, they get dressed up in their cooking uniforms and go into the kitchen to start making the food. The Cornerstone Cafe is a little restaurant where teachers, administrators, and community members can go and eat food made by the culinary arts students. Their most popular meal on the menu is chicken parmesan.

Each student has a different specialty in his or her repertoire of cooking skills. The master of the dessert portion of culinary is senior Lindsey Snay. "I love cooking. My best dessert dishes are chocolate cakes," she said. Lindsey wants to become a baker someday.

For a dinner dish, senior Andrew Serrenho claimed, "Pork tenderloin is my best dish!" Andrew loves this class and thinks it a great learning experience.

On Fridays of each week, the students put together a buffet full of different types of foods. This is the students' favorite part of the class because they spend the day cooking all of the food and then, after all that hard work, they get to sit down and enjoy eating the food together.

Foods class is also another cooking class that some students take. This class is not a part of the tech division, only an academic class. This class is only one block each day unlike, culinary, which can be up to three blocks each day.

The students cook the food and when it is ready they can enjoy it. On specific holidays, like Halloween and Christmas, the foods students cook desserts according to that holiday. They make Christmas cookies and and cakes with designs on them. The wonderful aromas on the third floor torture the English and history teachers!

Precision Cutting
Senior Andrew Burgener cuts up carrots and onions for a delicious rice pilaf. He cuts them up into little squares and then mixes them together into the rice. Andrew came into this class not knowing how to cook anything, and now as he leaves high school he knows how to cook many different foods for himself.

Healthy Greens
Senior Lindsey Snay is making a tossed salad. She cuts up cilantro and mixes it in with other ingredients to make a delicious healthy salad.

SIDE DISHES
Senior Andrew Serrenho peels a potato that he is then going to use for a popular side in the Cornerstone Cafe, which is mashed potatoes. This is Andrew's third year of taking culinary. Throughout these three years, he has learned more and more techniques on how to cook different meals and the safeties of cooking.

Buffet Preparation
Senior Garrett Wetnicka is preparing for the buffet that is served on Fridays. This buffet is available to all teachers and culinary students. Mr. Popp is lending him a hand with getting the work done. They make varieties of foods for the buffet, so, when they are done, the students sit down and enjoy a nice meal made by them.

FESTIVE COOKING

Senior Drew Nascembeni uses the mixer to make cookie dough for his group. Drew said, "I really enjoy cooking; it is a good skill for later in life."

Junior Alex Dickey frosts the cookies to get in the scary season of Halloween. She made little ghosts and pumpkin shaped cookies.

Junior Scott Phillips and Senior Andrew Alicea take a little break from their cooking to chat a little before returning to their cooking.

FUN IN FOOD CLASS

Practice makes perfect, but so do perfect machines. Junior Jake Charette fixes the machine in order to accurately complete his project.

ALWAYS BE SAFE
In machine shop, you need to wear your safety goggles and take proper safety procedures in class. Here, Junior Jake Charette fixes the lathe before using it.

GETTING THE JOB DONE

story by Laura Polizoti, Brandon Merriman and Logan Nardi photos by Brandon Merriman

People think machine shop is some mysterious, serious place, but it's actually a lot of fun. The students who take machine shop rave on how much fun the class is. Matt Folger, who has been in machine shop for one year, said, "I plan to apply what I learned in this class to a job in the near future."

Working hard and working together is a main thing in machine shop. The students always help another and are happy to. Especially if you only been in the class for one year, someone with more experience can help you out a lot. Working together and partnering up is a common thing in machine shop, and it gets the projects done a lot faster.

Owen Walter and Tylor Sutton, the only seniors in B Block, help the juniors in the class. The both agree that they love being asked to help, feeling the sense of being respected by the class and having the students feel that they know a lot of terminology about machine shop and the machines.

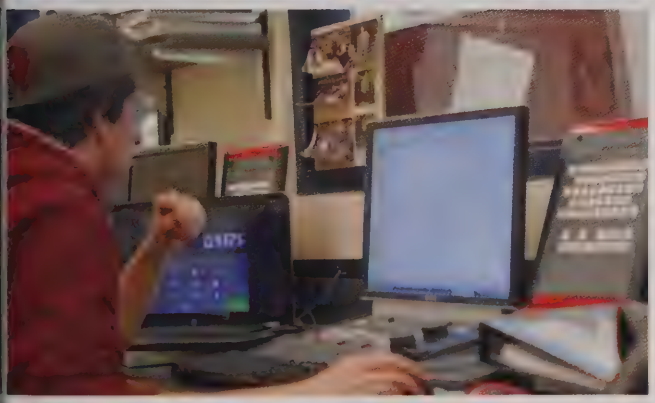
Machine Shop has given students an opportunity to gets co-op jobs while still in high school. Most of the students in class agree that they will use what they've learned here in a job in the near future. The students all work independently and get right to work once in class.

"Machine shop isn't all about machines. There is a lot of math involved, and thinking ahead is critical in finishing your project," junior Ryan Ingerman said. When faced with math, most students cringe and hate the subject, but in Machine Shop the students embrace it, because it is combined with something they love.

In the end, though, it's all about the finished project. If one thing goes wrong, it all goes wrong. The students all work hard on their projects and focus on one thing: getting the job done, with success.

Welding master
Senior Tylor Sutton is welding in machine shop. "You need to wear a mask when you weld because the light is so bright you could damage your eyes," he explained. Tylor continued to say how much he enjoys machine shop, and he has a co-op job for welding because of machine shop.

Working hard
Junior Jake Charette is working hard ... or is it hardly working? Jake always gives his maximum effort in everything in machine shop. "I love getting good grades in this class, plus having this being my favorite class, it's always fun! Hard work is defiantly key," said Jake.

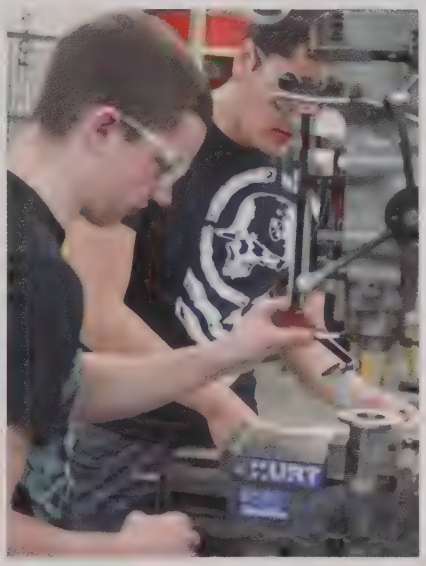


Not all about machines
Junior Ryan Ingerman works on the layout for his class project "Everyone thinks machine shop is all about big, heavy equipment, but we also use computers heavily in class," Ryan said.

Watch me work
Senior Owen Walter is working on the mill to complete a project. Owen always helps people out in class and is happy to. Owen said, "It doesn't bother me to help people out!"

WORKING TOGETHER

Juniors Sebastian and Jake Charette work on a class project together. "Working together is the easiest way to get the project done in class. We have a hard workload, and having a partner gives you a sense of relief," Jake said. Here, they are working together to finish a project using the Mill.



TINKERING

GETTING THE PROJECT DONE

TOP: As a class project, the students work to complete an R2-D2. "This project was my favorite one I have done my years being in machine shop," Chris Chalmers said. The R2-D2 has been a uniter for the class, bringing them closer together and having fun along with it. This is the first thing you see when you walk into machine shop, and it instantly brings makes you curious about what this project is. MIDDLE: Junior Sebastian Piwcio works on a project in machine shop. Sebastian says, "You need to concentrate on the task at hand to perfect the project you're working on." BOTTOM: Senior Owen Walter works on trimming a piece of metal to finish his project. Owen said, "I will use the skills I have learned in machine shop and apply them to life after school." Owen continued to say how machine shop has been the highlight of his senior year.

All Aboard! The seniors are anxiously awaiting to hop on the bus to Harrington Hospital and start their day taking care of patients in their assigned unit. This is where the students get real world experience in the workplace.

A Helping Hand Ms. Burque is an active member in the Allied Health program. She has played an important role this year assisting students in hands-on activities, providing help when the seniors go to clinical, as well as helping finish tasks such as correcting tests.

A CAREER IN HEALTH

story and photos by Collin LaCroix

For many, a career in health can be a very rewarding experience. The students who are enrolled in this four-year course combine their knowledge that they learn in the classroom with hands-on field experience. With the help from teachers like Mrs. Silvestris, Mrs. Goncalves, and the new teacher assistant this year, Mrs. Burque, allied health students enjoyed real world nursing experience through their clinical.

Freshman and sophomores are assigned Mrs. Silvestris as their instructor for their first two years in the program. During these two years, she teaches them the foundation of what they are going to be practicing during their junior and senior year through class discussions and analysis on alternating days.

Mrs. Goncalves, the junior and senior instructor, describes her experience teaching students going into the nursing field as "rewarding, fulfilling, and at times very exciting." This program is also uses innovative approach to introduce students to the obstacles and responsibilities the nursing assistant will face after high school.

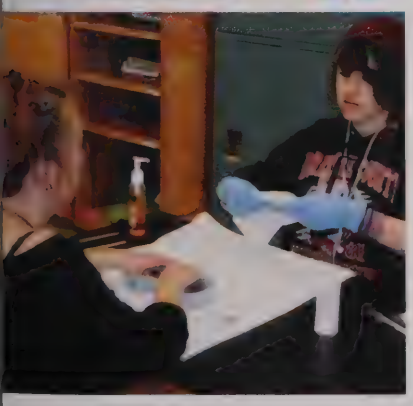
The senior group is rewarded for their hard work in the classroom and dedication to providing quality to care to their community by receiving their Nursing Assistant Certificate, which they can use to seek employment in the nursing field to increase their chances in seeking a job they are passionate about.

"I couldn't be more pleased knowing that I have chosen a path that turned out to be my passion, and I am even more excited to pursue my career even further when I attend college next year," said Tara Harrington. She feels that her instructors were helpful in guiding her down the right path and giving her suggestions as to what area of nursing she wants to specialize in. She highly recommends this program to anybody who is interested in nursing.

Sanitation Matters!
Hand washing is one of the most important skills in any nursing profession. Allied Health students are taught to wash their hands correctly to protect themselves from harmful germs in the workplace. Devin Cocaine is practicing her hand-washing skills as others in the class observe her technique.

Becoming a Leader
During senior year, the senior group is allowed to partake in an internship where they model the role of the teacher and help carry out tasks that would otherwise prohibit the teacher from being able to help out other students with their studies. Tara Lynn Harrington is shown below grading the class tests.

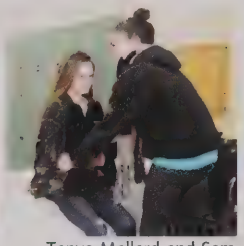
Transportation is Key
Not all students have the same means of transportation to get to their clinical sites, nor do they have the same site, either. Some seniors may leave for the Masonic Overlook, while others are assigned to Harrington Hospital. Most students have the option of also doing an internship second semester. Their options are endless: they may choose to work in a dental office, the ER, pediatric facilities, and even private practices if they choose so. Kaitlyn Sweet is taking the bus to her clinical site.



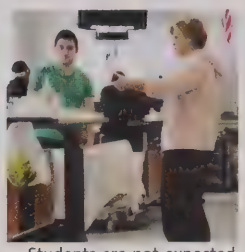
Good Communication
Kaylee Jones is preparing to preform nail care on Kristine Kholstrom. Kaylee Jones is telling Kristine what she is going to do before she performs the skill. It is important to practice these skills with classmates in order to feel comfortable with carrying out these tasks on the other people they are assigned to take care of next year in clinical.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT!

Ryan Laurie and Nicholas Burtt are working together, assisting each other in making an unoccupied bed. It is vital that they communicate with each other, as it is a two-person task.

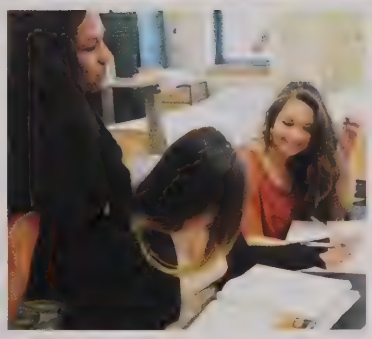


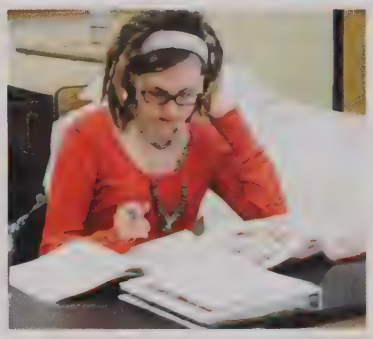
Tanya Mallard and Sam Dion practice sitting transfers using techniques that they have learned this year in class.Tasks like this usually require practice, so they are repeated throughout the year.



Students are not expected to master these skills the first time. Ms. Goncalves watches over each student carefully to make sure that they are doing each step correctly in the process of these tasks.

YES, THERE IS BOOK WORK, TOO!





TOP: Ms. Burque, the teacher assistant for the allied health program, is with several of the senior students from the allied health technical program, answering any of their questions and carefully explaining to students specific roles of the nursing assistant. MIDDLE: Seniors Kayla Buck and Marisha Snow are shown working collaboratively to answer questions in a class discussion on controversial subjects using what they already know about the subject and working together to provide thoughtful, well-debated answers. BOTTOM: Most work, however, is independent work. Cassidy Cloutier works on her daily assignments diligently and prepares to discuss her answers with the rest of the class.

MASC FAMILY

Emily Morin and Alexis Fretis show some Tantasqua pride at MASC! Every student council member looks forward to signing up for a three-day trip to the annual MASC conference! Students learn new leadership techniques and ways to improve our very own Tantasqua student council.

UNITE AS ONE

Twelve members of the Tantasqua Student council raised money and dove into 30 degree cold water! Kate McGee, Lindsay Gorey, Felicia Bouchard, Melanie Monteiro, Sebrina Bouchard, Alexis Fretis, Brooke Galonek and Emily Morin pose for a quick picture before diving into the freezing cold water.

BE A STUCO WARRIOR

story and photos by Melanie Monteiro

Being a part of student council takes a lot of hard work, responsibility and dedication. From an honorary member to being the president of EBoard, every member has a voice no matter who you are. In order to be a true student council member, you need to be a leader, have pride for your school, and work well with others.

The members of student council are the voices for the Tantasqua student body. The council has created multiple social media accounts to keep most of the school in the loop with upcoming events. They have created a Snapchat, Twitter and Instagram. "Students are constantly checking their phones, updating their lives with the latest Twitter drama," said Felicia Bouchard. We came up with a great idea of creating social media pages that would make students outside the council more aware of up coming events." It's a great way to get the school involved with spirit weeks and school dances.

Outsiders from student council might think the members' jobs are easy. It takes a lot of hard work and responsibility. Members have to attend as many full board meetings and class meetings as they can. Some student council members participate in multiple after school activities; it's hard to fit everything into their busy schedules. So, to be a member of Tantasqua's StuCo, you need the ability to juggle multiple tasks at once. If you think that you can handle the intensity of being a part of the Tantasqua student council, they are always looking for new members.

COME ABOARD THE STUCO BUS

Throughout the school year, student council sells homecoming tickets, Valentine's day flowers, and collects ballots for the elections during all three lunches. Lunches are a way for the council to communicate and work with the entire Tantasqua student body.

WE ARE A TEAM

One of the fabulous adviser's, Mrs. Lavalle, talks with members of the council about upcoming events. The entire council is like a team. They work together to solve problems, rely on one another for help with different events, and work together to finish multiple tasks. Without teamwork, the council would fall into a million pieces.

THERE'S A CLUB FOR THAT!

Who knew something so small could turn in to a huge and successful motivational group at Tantasuqa? Last year, when Chris Herran visited our school, students and facility were touched by his struggling past. After the shocking assembly, devoted students made the decision to play off Chris's idea of "Project Purple".

Since then, students have been promoting a clean, drug-free life, and once a year we have our "Project Purple day," where students can wear purple to show their support.

But that's not the only uplifting club our school has. Students from all grades come together every year to plan our Relay for Life. For one night until dawn the next day, our students race around the track all to raise money for cancer patients across the world. After months of planning, the event is always a success. hundreds of students come to show their support and join in on the fun.

Another important club our school has to offer the is Gay/Straight Alliance club. Once a week, students come together to show support for one another in the fight for gay, straight, and transgender equality.

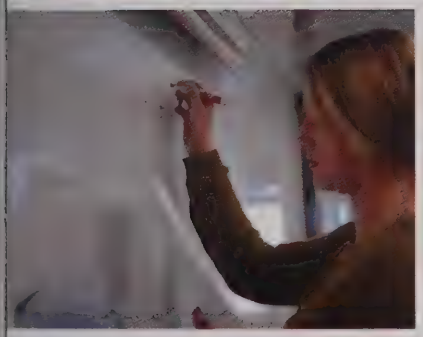
Tantasquans involved with GSA dedicated a day called "A Day of Silence," where, if you donate five dollars to the cause, you may participate for a full day of no speaking in school to show your support.

Another great club our school has to offer is the "Best Buddies Program" where students can help members of the Pathways Program do arts and crafts, and even help with their homework.

All these clubs and so many more are just another way Tantasqua students can lend out a helping hand and show the community that we care. Working together, these students help make an important difference.

YOU GOT THIS, DUDE!
The only way to get through a good lift is a little motivation from your pals. A few kids stay after during the week to exercise. Most people in the weight room are training for an upcoming sport, while some just want to look good for the tank top weather. "I love working out and getting ready for lax with my boys," said Andrew.

CURLS FOR THE GIRLS
Hunky junior Brandon Mojica lifts 70lbs with great effort. "I love to work out, but doing things for my arms are my favorite. The ladies love my arm muscles. How could they not?" said Brandon rather confidently.

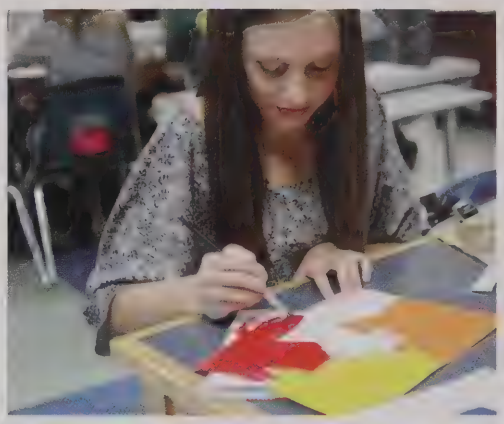


DOWN TO THE WIRE
Bold Tantasqua students take on the job of planning Relay For Life. One of Tantasqua's biggest events takes months to plan, and it wouldn't be so amazing without the dedicated students who spend time deciding the activities. Junior Kendra Iller writes out an intricate list of possible entertainment for the night. The Relay for Life was a successful event (see page 26-27).

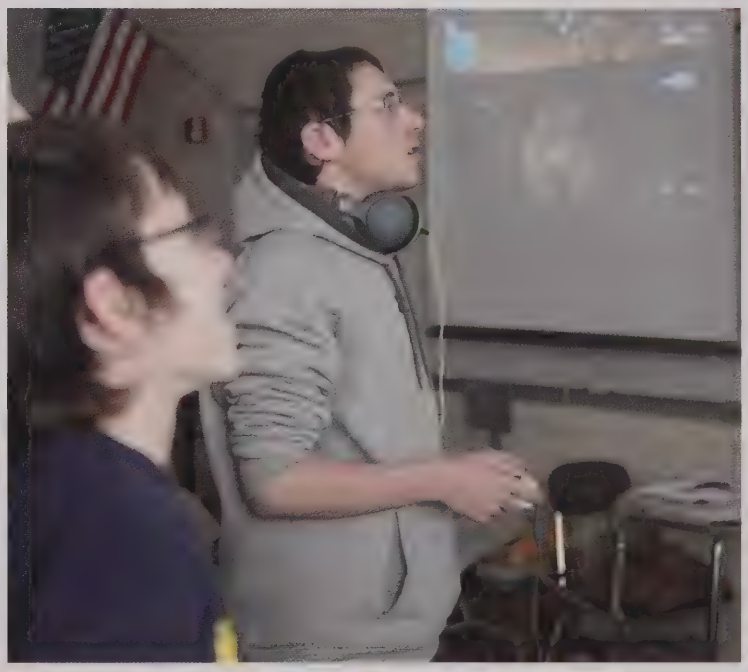
PLAN AHEAD
Seniors Tucker France and Ben Kennedy didn't think they would be spending their senior year after school working hard on something other then college applications. They couldn't help themselves once they found out about the amazing amount of group effort. "I love my relay team. It was such a blast, I can't believe its over," said junior Megan Stearns after relay.

SHOW YOUR CREATIVITY

Junior Christie Arena was never really one for art, but once she found projects she liked, she would spend extra time after school working on it. "Art is peaceful to me. I would rather be painting than working on a hard essay or homework," said Christie. Mr. Thompson is one of the art teachers a student would like to work with. He is a nice guy and gets along with almost anyone.



GAMING CLUB



TOP: Jacob Ouimette and friend join in an intense game of Soul Caliber V. "I go when I can," said Jacob nonchalantly. He said it's good to connect with new people who have things in common. "Mr. Nameika is really cool," Jacob said with a sly smile on his face. MIDDLE: Shown in this photo is Game Club President, Robert Graham, also known as "Rocky." Kids like to have someone in charge. BOTTOM: Other students gather around a third screen to play their game. "Anyone who is into video games would like the club. It's fun and easy to get together with people. We play Halo, COD, Smash Bros and way more!" Issac Torrez told us.

MULTITASKING MUCH?

After school, Quentin Antonio pauses his game of basketball to check a quick text on his phone. Tantasqua students allow themselves time to stay connected to social media whatever they may be doing.

SING YOUR HEART OUT

Dedicated music students stay after many days of the week to perfect their upcoming shows. From left to right, Savannah Fitzgibbons, Chloe O'Brien, Emily O'Connel, Johnathan Ebersold, Collin McClutchy, and Connor O'Brien. "Music is the international tones and rhythm to create sound. Music programs are a positive way to keep me out of trouble. We're all like a family," said Collin with a smile on his face.

BE SEEN, HEARD, & INVOLVED

When the last bell rings, the teachers pack their things and the 2 pm buses pull out of the parking lot, and Tantasqua's after school life is just beginning.

Tantasqua is home to over 48 clubs and activities that have open arms to anyone who wants to join. While the students form lasting bonds with similar interests, they also have the chance to realize that the teachers running these clubs are greater than they thought.

Our clubs offer a huge variety anywhere from fitness club to photography club, Dungeons and Dragons club to a karate club!

"After a long day of classes and tests, it's nice to be able to unwind and forget about the days hardships with the people I feel welcome with" said one student told us.

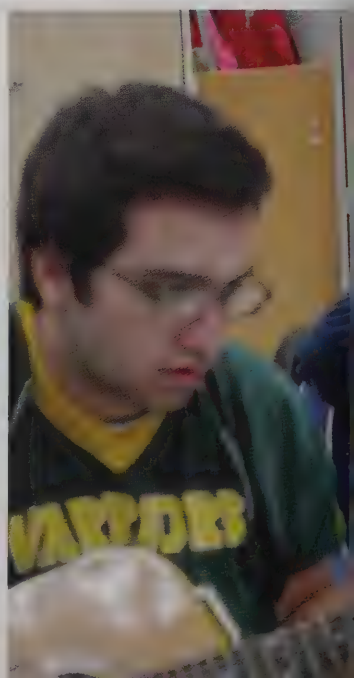
Whether you are interested in learning or thinking about a career you might be interested in for the future (such as zoology), there's a club for that. If you are looking for some people to accompany you on a nature walk, there's a club for that too! There are also clubs for music, dancing, bike riding, drawing, writing ... the list goes on and on.

Although these clubs can be hard work, it teaches you dedication, friendship, leadership and responsibility. Yet any of that is hardly recognized when you're having so much fun doing the things you want to do.

So next time you miss your bus, stop by an open classroom and come on in. You never know where it might take you.

WHATEVER YOU PLAY

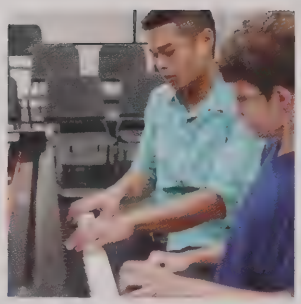
Guitar class is a good time to wind down and focus on creating beautiful sounds with an instrument. Senior Doug Brady sports his bright blue acoustic guitar to the right. "I took this class because I knew it would be good for me, end of senior year, I knew it was easy and I could pass it," said Doug with a slightly careless demeanor. Students in this class are very laid back and enjoy the peaceful atmosphere. Shown also are Connor Obrien and Autumn Guntor.



EVERYONE DOES THEIR OWN THING

WHAT'S THE UPDATE?
Juniors Adelaide Fay and Caroline Blanchard check their phones for the latest gossip on Twitter and Facebook. After a long day of school and staying after for a class, waiting for the after-school bus is a good time to catch up on things.

WHATEVER YOUR MUSIC
Carter Girard has no shame repping his bright red beats by Dre while waiting for the bus. "I stay after for Project Purple every Tuesday and Thursday. It keeps me busy," said Carter.



PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT
Justin Rothweiler makes extra time for piano playing. He spends his afternoons with Mr. Paras in the music suite. "Marching Band is a big commitment; football games are the reward to show the hard work we put into practicing," he said.

CATCHING UP
Friends Sabina Prenneis and Tawnya Mallot spend a few minutes in a window seat to talk about their day. "I like to stay after because it shows that I care about my classes and grades. I also like the extra time to see my friends," she said.

FOCUS IS KEY
Jared Worth carefully watches as his opponent winds up to send back a ping pong ball. "This was my second time going and there's about five or six kid who do it. It's a smaller club and we switch off doubles and singles and we even have small tournaments with each other. Sometimes Mr. Khoury comes in and plays with us," said Jared. He thinks the best part about being a part of a club is having time to hangout with friends while doing something they like.

ULTIMATE PING PONG

Students come together for highly intense games of ping pong in the cafeteria after school. This club was created by a few kids who had nothing better to do after school and enjoyed the sport. While only a few students are a part of the club, they are always open to having new players. The bigger the group the better. Nathan Lachoppelle started ping pong club and is a regular to the after school activity. "I'm 'pretty' good," Nathan said, laughing. "It can be a lot of work once we get to playing tournaments against each other." Also, Aaron Inthirath tries his best to clear a high shot. He successfully hits it and makes it over the net. The healthy competitiveness between friends is a great way to end a long school day. "Yes, I am the best," said founder of ping pong club, Nathan.

INTRIGUING INTERNS

Senior Tyler Sutton cuts a piece of metal with some heavy machinery. When asked what he does during internship, Tyler explained that "I assist any machine shop students that needs help." Unlike the usual school internships where the interns clean or make photocopies, Tyler needs to know how to operate all the sophisticated pieces of machinery in machine shop.

HAPPY RETIREMENT "JANITOR DAN"

Everyone knows Daniel Parent as "Janitor Dan," famous for his handlebar mustache, his friendly sense of humor, and his readiness with a stick of gum. The story goes that, years ago, Dan came across a student who looked like he was having a bad day. So, Dan did what any decent person would do: offered the student a stick of gum. As it happened, that simple gesture turned the student's day around, and Dan's been giving out gum ever since. After many years at Tantasqua, Dan has befriended teachers and students alike, and he has been an important part of the community here. Students, faculty, administration, and staff will miss him.

READY FOR GAME DAY!

story by Robert Kenyon & Sam Domozych photos by Les Gardner

The Tantasqua football team had another over .500 season this year going a strong 7-4. When the Warriors would win they would win by a large margin and had a few close games where they had unfortunately lost.

In the playoffs they lost to St. Peter-Marian, who they had faced earlier in the season. Stepping up as quarterback, junior Zack Edwards led the team to several victories, including the landslide victory against Northbridge High school. In the middle of the season, he suffered a broken wrist during the Doherty High school game.

Junior running back Andrew Tichy filled in the two games Edwards was out. The Warriors had suffered many more injuries throughout the year. The team knew they would have to work just as hard with or without these players and they did.

Losing in the second round of the playoffs, most of the team was happy with how far they had made it since most of the starting team of last year was made up of seniors. Joe Beveridge took the spot of head coach after Aaron Powell decided to retire. Joe Beveridge had an impressive first year as coach, and the players are looking forward to playing under his leadership next season, hopefully to another superbowl appearance. "We have a lot of talent in the next few years," said starting receiver Trevor Robert.

Anticipating The Pass
#3 QB Zack Edwards fakes the hand off to #33 Mike Nichols and then scans down the field to find an open receiver. "We had a good season, seeing as we had a new offensive system; next year is looking like another playoff appearance," said junior quarterback Zack Edwards. Zack Edwards was injured halfway through the season with a broken wrist, but came back to finish up the season.

CATCHING THE BALL DURING PRE-GAME WARM-UPS

RUNNING BACKS
On a bright autumn day, senior Mike Nichols and junior Liam Fuller run the ball for pre-game warm-ups.

UP IN THE AIR
Senior Tyler Gratton looks over his shoulder for the ball. "I'm glad we made it as far in the season as we did," he said.

AN AMAZING CATCH
Junior Jake Celko puts his arm out to catch the ball. "With all the seniors moving on, we can still do well if we get in the underclassmen weight room," said Jake.

ON THE RUN
Sam Domozych runs towards the end zone to catch the ball. "It was a good season, even with a new coach and play system," he said.

WAITING FOR THE CALL
Between plays, the team gathers on the sideline and looks down the field. Mike Conroy, JP Vitello, Matt Bressette , and Cam Laird catch their breath and prepare to get back into the game.

GAME ON THE GROUND
Senior, captain, and MVP All-State left tackle #53, Bobby Law leads the offensive line through pre-game warm ups. "The game is won in the trenches, and that's what we tried to accomplish," Law says.

PRE-GAME PASSING
Senior Captain Spencer Duncan had 17 touchdowns on the season. "Losing seniors like Jon and Dom was hard for the team, but they taught us good mechanics and leadership skills," said Duncan.

FIGHTING IN THE TRENCHES
The offensive line is ready to hike the ball. The center, junior Mike Sexton, looks forward in anticipation of the block he has to make.

Our goal is stopping yours
Junior goalkeeper Logan Nardi is warming up before the David Prouty game. Logan says, "I take warm-ups very seriously. If your not breaking a sweat before the game, your not ready for the game.". Logan went on to make 146 saves during the season, adding an extra 40+ saves from last season with 104.

REACHING OUR GOAL

story by Logan Nardi and Maddision Mayberry photos by Logan Nardi, Matthew Rickson and Les Gardner

The girls' varsity soccer team this year made major improvements compared to the last season. The team made it into the second rounds of districts, but unfortunately they stopped there. They were faced with a new coach and coaching style, and overcame the challenges while growing as a family. "We are a family" is a sentiment the girls share.

The girls' season, even after districts, was at 500. The team fought hard and came away with astonishing victories. They defeated our school rival, Shepherd Hill, not once, but twice, and defeated many of their own personal rivals in their last regular season game, Auburn.

The team had their ups and downs, but overcame them with the determination to do better than last year. The team agreed that they wanted to leave their seniors with three things: "Kill the Hill" twice, win senior night, and make it to districts. All three were accomplished and their heads were held high even with their last game together.

The girls ended their season with many tears shed, not wanting it to be over, but glad to leave on a positive note. They made girls' soccer history by making it to second rounds of districts without a walk in 30+ years. The team is already ready for next season, planning on going further, and proud that they reached their goal.

How can you summarize a whole season of athletic effort? "We win together, we lose together," said Ryan Arsenault. The boys' varsity soccer team went through many obstacles this season. They had a coaching change with Mr. Guertin. As always, when a team undergoes changes, it takes some getting used to. Still, the boys worked hard to become an effective, cohesive unit on the field.

The boys practiced hard every day. "I remember going to practice knowing I was going to get everything I needed out of the little time we had," said Paul James. Practices were brutal, running especially, but they pushed through with one goal in mind: qualifying for districts.

When asked to recap the season, junior captain Trey Allen said, "Being a captain as a junior, I was faced with more responsibilities then I anticipated. But with the help of my teammates, we together overcame the challenges."

The team tried hard, giving it their all at every game. They unfortunately didn't qualify for districts. That doesn't mean, however, that they can't be proud of the good team building they did for next year. Meanwhile, all good things must come to an end, but the boys never gave up and fought until the very end, even when they knew they were out.

Refuse to lose
"We left it all out on the field," said sophomore Benjamin Rickson. The team never gave up and took something away from each and every game.

"Heading" to the top
Senior captian Liam Segiun goes up for a header against Northbridge.

Go after your goals
Sophomore Jesse Gillette makes the usual upper 90 save while going through goalie warm-ups. Jesse said, "Being the goalkeeper is one of the hardest positions on the field. You can see the game from a completely different point of view."

Whatever it takes
Sophomore Benjamin Rickson controls the field by taking possession of the ball whenever he can. Ben said, "It doesn't come easy; you need a lot of hard work and dedication to be good at any sport."

Believe and Achieve
Junior Paul James practices juggling before the big game. "You can never go wrong with practice," Paul said.

PRACTICE WINNING EVERYDAY

The boys this year went through a rebuilding season, losing more than 5 seniors in key positions. The team practiced hard every day to maximize the opportunities they were given on the field. Although in the end the boys did not make it to districts, they fought hard even when the odds were stacked against them.

These girls are on fire. In its sixth year at Tantasqua, the volleyball team ended a co-champion of the SWCL league and took a spot in districts with a final record of 14-6.

Highlights of the season include the team's victory against Shepherd Hill on their charity "Pink Night" to benefit breast cancer treatment, and also the first round of districts, where the girls were the champions against Saint Peter Marian.

Sadly, in the second round of districts, Westborough defeated Tantasqua, completing the volleyball season, but the girls have come a long way. "We put in a lot of work at the beginning of the season," said junior Amelia LaMountain, "but as you look around, you see yourself and all your teammates improving. We, as a team, are getting better every year."

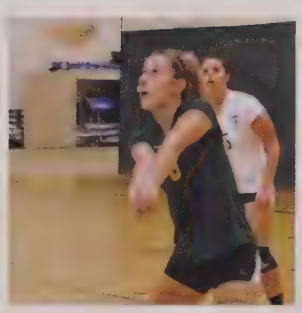
Most of the athletes on the team are especially proud to be taking the volleyball team to close to victory, since the sport is still relatively new to the school.

Sadly, the girls will be losing a few good senior players, but they are excited for the next year's season.

Most girls are playing off season for winter and spring teams, getting ready to improve and go even further in districts next year. They were so dedicated to playing, and the scores show it.

THE TIGHTEST GAME AROUND

MORIAH BURNS
Moriah Burns, being one of the tallest girls on the team, covered any hit the other teams threw over the net. She was one of the leading players in blocks.



MICHELLE PALMER
As libero, Michelle Palmer always saved the team from missing a dig in the back row. Whenever the team was struggling, Michelle was first to cover the floor.

THE JACK OF ALL TRADES
Claudia Fleshmen took the team to victory a number of times with her killer hits, serves, sets, and digs. She is one of the only players who covered front and back row.

FROM SPIKING TO SINGING
After completing warm-ups with her team, Lauren Gerrish performed the National Anthem at every home game, then joined the starting lineup as outside hitter.

WAITING FOR THE SERVE
Before the serve comes over the net, the girls assume a position so that they can easily get to their spots on the court without crossing the others. Here, Amanda Merrifield, Rachel Schutes, and Claudia Fleshman are prepared to switch positions and start playing.

After each point, the volleyball team celebrates with a cheer. In the photo above, the team comes together to celebrate the ace scored on South High School.

SHE SCHUTES, SHE SCORES!
Senior Rachel Schutes makes a solid attempt to get the ball over the net. "Being on the court is exciting and scary at the same time," she said, "but in the end you get over all of that and just have fun with playing the game."

For the Tantasqua Varsity Field Hockey team, all the sweat, blood and tears that have gone into practices, day after day, have paid off! After many years a, the girls' varsity team finally broke through and made it to districts!

Senior athlete Maddie Creamer said, "Out of all seasons, this season had the hardest working players. Everyone was on cloud nine when we made it to districts!"

Every sport has pre-game rituals. Before each game the girls would all sit in the cage and "make it rain." One of the best memories was just creating a bond with her teammates, and going to practice, looking forward to being with her team everyday. Maddie plans on continuing to play club field hockey in college, taking with her the skills she's developed over her seasons on the field hockey team.

Sophomore Liz Adams says, "Before each game, I listen to 'Slow Down' by Selena Gomez; it really makes me become more focused!" Liz also said that one of her best memories from this season was when Coach Glennon put on her green stringy wig and did the goal dance! "The most memorable game to me was the game when we tied Notre Dame!" said Liz.

Make it Rain!
The team sits in the cage before a home game and makes it rain. "Making it rain" is a progression of claps, snaps, and bangs, which makes it sounds like actual rain! It also pumps up the team!

Staying alert!
Senior Maddie Creamer, receives a pass from another teammate during warm ups and shuttles. This helps the team get ready for the game and focused on wining. This also helps stretch, so no one will get hurt.

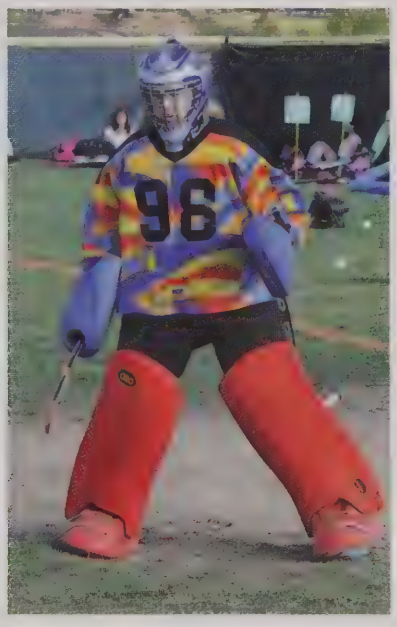
Fight for the ball!
Junior Alexa Baker, competes for possession of the ball with the opposing team during the game. You have to push yourself to get the ball, so you can score and hopefully win the game!

Pass to me!
Junior Maggie Simmonds push-passes the ball to her teammate. In field hockey, there is many kinds of passing. When you push-pass, you have to get down low to have an accurate pass.

Chasing the Ball
Sophomore Erin Butts chases after a high ball. It's the competition that really drives the whole team to be aggressive and play their hardest. The main goal is to win, after all!

PLAYING DEFENSIVELY

While playing field hockey, you must stay alert while concentrating on what's going on around you. The players in the field must become good at passing, dodging, and more stick work.The goalie must learn how to stop balls quickly and accurately. The Tantasqua varsity field hockey team has made it to Districts! All the hard work has finally paid off!



DiGregorio stays alert as the ball eases down to Tantasqua's side of the field. She always tries her hardest to save some goals!

ABOVE: Junior Kate Muir fights for the ball. She gets low and plays defense as she gets to the ball quickly.

"Fore!"

Heads up for the golf team this year! Everyone knows that we have a football team, and we go out of our way to support our basketball teams, but few recognize that we also have a very competitive golf team. The fact of the matter is that golf is one of our school's most victorious sports, but is also one of the least recognized.

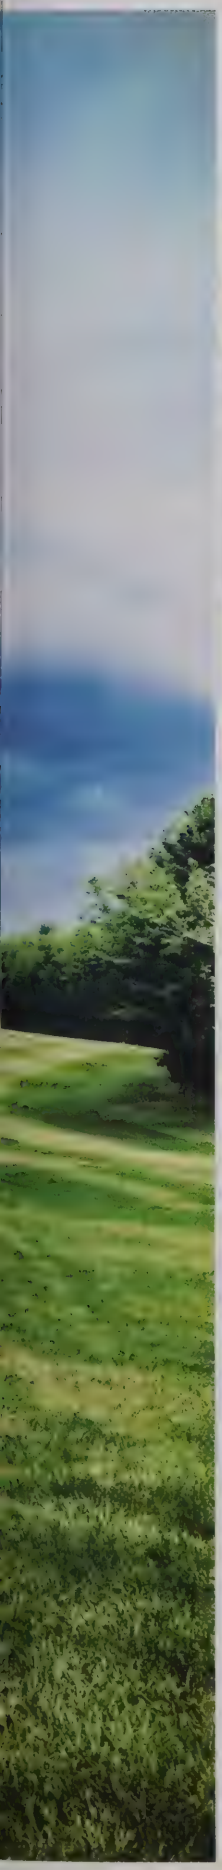
Senior captain Max DeCataldo described it perfectly, "No one thinks golf matters, but we've been the best fall sports team the past few years."

This year was very successful overall. The golf team won SWCL, finishing 14-0 in their league. This year also marks the first year that Tantasqua has won the SWCL tournament.

The team went on to districts, finishing just 9 strokes out of second place.

Senior captain Jake Farland is proud of how far our golf team has come. "Finishing top in our league is something we have striven for during the three years I have been a part of this team, and the fact that it happened in my senior couldn't make me happier," he said.

TEACHING THEM A LESSON
Every year the students face off against the Tantasqua administration in the annual teacher match. This year, students decided to have a little fun with their outfits and wore a variety of costumes. The match ended in a tie, allowing the students to retain the cup. The teachers have yet to win.



Getting Better
Senior Jackson Grudzien reads the green before approaching his putt. His average has improved 4 strokes from last year.

Be the Best You Can Be
Junior Evan Soraci takes his putt on the green of hole number two at Hemlock Ridge. Evan was awarded the most improved player by coach Berthiaume this year.

A Mental Game
Max DeCataldo puts his physics skills to work as he reads the green. Max grew from a sophomore rookie to a senior captain, finishing as co-MVP along with Jake Farland.

Finishing on Top
Senior Jake Farland sinks this putt like he has done so many times. Jake came in first place in this year's SWCL tournament with a score of 74, beating over 70 other competitors.

WHO WE ARE

The dynamics behind the golf team rival that of any competitive sport at this school. Behind every team is a brotherhood that has its own methods of improving. The captains this year figured out a funny and clever way of motivating the team. The player with the worst round of each match was forced to wear a hideous necklace the next day for the whole school to see!

LEFT: Senior Jeremy Allen takes his chip during a home match. "I pride myself on how far my chipping has come," he said.

RUNNING THE DISTANCE

story by Christina White and Gabby Rodulfo photos by Les Gardner

Fatigue, pain, and stray animals: that's what the cross country warriors had to deal with in the season. The boys' and the girls' teams faced these challenging obstacles in their 3.1 mile long course. They faced times where they wanted to give up, but they kept going to reach the finish line. At the start of some of the races they all wait in anticipation to hear the sound of the gun go off. Then they run.

This season for the girls' team, they had a hard working season. Although they didn't win every time, they still put in all of their effort together as a team. Senior Cassie Lavallee said, "Cross country makes you feel like you want to give up but to keep on going is what makes you feel accomplished." Sophomore Faye Rhult loves running. "Going to districts was very challenging and I felt overwhelmed," she said. This was her toughest moment of the season.

The boys' cross country team had a very successful season. They had all wins except one loss. It was a close meet, but all that matters was they focused on their running. Their team was 3rd in the league. "Quitters aren't winners," said senior Nick Stanley. They had many laughs throughout their season. Junior Mike Ostrowski said, "One time in a meet as we were running, a dog started chasing us!" It was a small team, but to the boys it was like one big family.

FINISHING THE RACE

STRONG FINISH

ALMOST THERE
Senior Cassie Lavallee, followed by sophomore Faye Rhult, run at a constant pace so they will finish with a good time.

EXHAUSTION
As the boys finish the race they are extremely exhausted. They sit down on the guardrail to catch their breath.

STAYING TOGETHER
Two girls on the cross country team stay together as they run to the finish. If you run with someone, you are not as bored.

Warming Up
The boys' cross country team is warming up by taking a short run. These long distance runners' "short run" may seem long to us, but it is short for them. They like to have fun while on their runs, because when you are running for a while you can get bored easily.

Concentration
Sophomore Sarah Peck was a very valuable member of the girls team this season. She said, "I love long distance running; that is why I enjoy cross country so much." Sarah was friends with everyone on the team, even though it was a small team this year.

Getting Prepared
The Warriors always made sure to stretch before the meet. It is an important part of preparing before running. When they stretch, they talk and laugh and bond as a team.

FLYING HIGH TO THE FINISH

story by Becca Clark photos by Sarah Conley

"The year of the warriors!" shout the varsity cheerleaders as they compete for first place.

Two minutes and thirty seconds may not seem like a lot of time to most people, but to a cheerleader it's all the time you need. For about three or four months they work every day to learn their routine for their competition. Competition is a nerve- wracking time for a cheerleader, but it is also the best time.

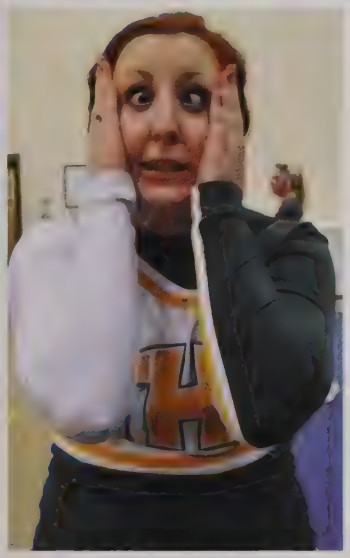
"Competing is my favorite because while you wait to go on the mat the fans go crazy, and it gets you pumped up," said senior Rebecca Clark. The cheerleaders get to prove to the judges how hard they have worked and how much they want to move on to the next competition.

"As a captain you want to push everyone to their limit, but you want them to have a good experience," said senior captain Deangela Galonek. Even though the fall varsity cheerleaders didn't make it to states, they did score a 79.25. "It was rare for us. It took us all by surprise. Our hard work had finally paid off," said junior Corie Reed. "Cheerleading is the kind of thing you can't not do; it's in my blood," said senior Sarah Conley.

LET'S GET FIRED UP!
Varsity cheerleaders Abby Gallant and Rebecca Clark laugh at each other at the basketball game. "No matter how much we get yelled at by the coach for being loud, we will never listen and stay quiet," said sophomore Abby Gallant.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT
Freshman Juliet Lunden pulls her bow and arrow to show off her flexibility for the fans. Pulling a bow and arrow isn't easy for most people, but with practice and dedication it'll happen. "I'm not naturally flexible, so it took a lot of hard work to get it to look like this" she said.

HIT HIT PULL!
Alyssa Keivra does a back tuck to get ready to cheer on the boys' varsity basketball game.



GO, FIGHT, WIN!
As a cheerleader you cheer for the boys' football team and girls' and boys' basketball team but they also compete at competitions. "My ultimate goal for me and my team is to push ourselves to the limit and achieve success."

KEEP UP THE SPIRIT
Senior Kailey Feeney keeps up the laughter by making funny faces at the team. "I like to keep up the spirits because sometimes we all get frustrated and need a good laugh," she said.

WRITTEN IN THE STARS

Any girl on the cheer team they would say that stunting is the hardest part of cheering. "It's the one thing that the crowd goes crazy about, but, when it doesn't hit, we can really get hurt," said senior Becca Clark. The girls have gotten their fair share of injuries while stunting, but that won't stop them; they will just get back up and be ready to do it again.

GETTING INTO THE ZONE
Junior, Chloe Lily is trying to get mentally prepared as she enters the throwing circle in her first attempt at shot put. "It is always fun spending time with my friends and being a competitive part of the team," said Lily

GIVE IT ALL YOU GOT
Senior Taylor Farland sprints ahead of David Prouty in the 4 by 4 relay. Farland is very important to this relay. As the anchor, she needs to have great speed and the ability to give everything she has when it's needed most.

GOING THE DISTANCE

story by Maddy Mayberry and Bobby Law photos by Maddy Mayberry and Bobby Law

Every year, many boys and girls join the Indoor track team. When you join the team, you aren't just running in circles; there are numerous different events that you can do. Once you find a race and a field event that fits you best, nothing can stop you.

This year the indoor track team, with so many new faces, had somewhat of a rocky start, but they lived up to expectations in the end. With new freshman like sprinter Meaghan Kelley and veteran runners like Dan Peck, the members grew into a team.

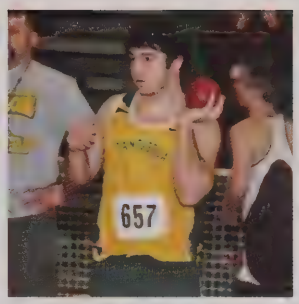
Indoor track is one of the toughest sports in the school, because you are tested not only physically but also mentally. Many people start off doing track, but many cannot handle the amount running and hard work it takes to be member of the Tantasqua indoor track team.

Indoor track is like no other sport; it is a very unique team sport in the sense that you get to compete individually but contribute to the team. "When you win an event, it does not just benefit you, it benefits the team," said senior captain Jess Luke.

It's always emotional when a season ends, but this season ended with multiple Tantasqua indoor track athletes going to states, which capped off another great season for Tantasqua. With so many talented athletes contributing, the results are successful.

STRETCHES AND HURDLES AND SHOT PUT, OH MY!

WARMING UP
Before her 1000-meter race, junior runner Faye Rhault stretches out her legs, getting focused for her run. "I like competing against the other schools and learning new running techniques," said Rhault.



HOW FAR CAN YOU THROW?
Junior powerhouse Andrew Tichy practices very hard at shot put; his hard work pays off during meet days.

HURDLES
Junior Izzy Couture is one of the team members who runs hurdles. Couture knows that to get a great time you have to be technically correct with your steps and your timing has to be on point so you get over the hurdles with ease.

DOUBLE TROUBLE
Freshman twin brothers Justin and Jake Luke keep a similar pace as they run the one-mile race.

WARRIOR PRIDE
Coach Carlson reps his Warrior Pride shirt that the coaches wear to every meet. The coaches preach Warrior Pride, and that is what the track team bases their team around. We win, lose and tie together as team, but we will never give up.

RUN, LIZ, RUN!
The two-mile race is one of the hardest races to run in indoor track. Runner Elizabeth Quevillion, a junior, participates every week in the two mile. She has great stamina and determination for this race.

LEAP OF FAITH
Junior captain Sam Allen puts his best effort into high jumping 5'10". This is Sam's second year on the track team, and he has made a huge leap in his performance since his first year. Allen also placed at the state level this season.

Warrior Tribe
These eight die-hard fans attended every game this year, even though the team had a down year. They supplied the spirit for the boys at every home game, never giving up faith on the hard season they were having.

Bring It In and Buckle Down
Coach O'Neal goes over the game plan with his team during a timeout. This may be his first year as head coach, but he has already earned the trust of his players.

HARD WORKING WARRIORS

story by Drew Nascembeni, Jackson Grudzien, James Simpson photos by Les Gardner

This year, the Warrior basketball team had a down season that ended at 2-15. The team consist of mostly juniors, along with senior Jeremiah Sciarafa. Many people saw this year as a rebuilding year for the program. Junior Captain Scott Phillips stated, "We are a young team; we are still learning how to play together, and next year should be a better year." Scott had a decent season this year after being named captain of the basketball team.

The only senior on the team, Jeremiah Sciarafa made the move back to basketball after downing a year of track. As the only senior on the team, he was in charge of bringing the team together. "We spent a good amount of timeover Scott's house this year building our team chemistry and becoming a close-knit team," Jeremiah said.

Sophomore JJ Howland was impressed by the new coach this year, Coach O'Neal, coming from Wachusett High School. "He helped out this year, it was good to get a change this year. I think under his new way of coaching that next year is going to be better, we just need to get use to the way he coach's us."

The Warrior basketball team looks to have a better season next year. Looking to have a more experienced team now that the rookies have a year of varsity under their belt.

LIVING LIFE ON THE COURT

Mike Ostrowski is in his first year in a varsity uniform. He improved his skills by practicing every day and training hard in the weight room. "You reach, I teach!" said the very ambitious Mikey.

Scott Phillips knocks down yet another three-point shot. "My teammates say that I have improved with my three-point shot. I've worked really hard to get to this point in my basketball career," said Scott.

JJ Howland uses his signature move to get close to the hoop for an easy layup. "Even though it wasn't the best year for us, we still kept working hard to win our next game," said Howland Junior co-captain Chandler Beaudoin looks for the open man under the hoop. "It was a hard season, but there is only room for improvement, and we plan to come back stronger next year," he said.

All hands up and ready to...
The team unites for yet another tough test. The coach always makes sure that the team is prepared and ready to give their best effort. He lets his team know that they can contend with anyone if they execute the game plan.

WINNING LADY WARRIORS

story by Melanie Monteiro and Bridget Candelaria photos by Les Gardner

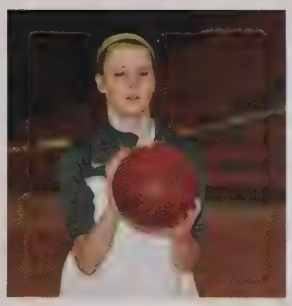
If you ask a lady warrior about this basketball season, surely you won't get an answer regarding their losses. This year, for the first time in many, these girls really portray what an athletic team can achieve. Instead of hearing about their losses or how they could have done better in certain games, you will instead hear about how much of a family their team has become and all of the positive thoughts surrounding this team. They eat, sleep and breath basketball from being together after hours to wearing matching sneakers on the court.

With no seniors on the girls' varsity team this year, captains Maggie Simonds and Claudia Fleshman had a lot riding on their shoulders but managed to create a powerful and loving team.

The girls' strong bond carried them to win ten regular season games and one districts game. Even with their losses, they still made it to districts and are stronger than ever. The ladies say they girls are coming for you! The whole school can't wait to see what the team will do next season.

MEET SOME OF THE LADY WARRIORS



Alli Beaudoin, Sophomore
Alli said, "This year we all clicked on the court; I can't wait to spend next year with the same team because we have bonded so much."

Elizabeth Beaudry, Junior
When asked how they did so well through a tough season, Liz said "keeping a positive attitude really helps our team."

Maggie Simonds, Junior
Maggie said, "We had no seniors this year. So, next year we are going to come back and be stronger and better than before!"

Katie Dobos, Junior
"Being supported on and off the court makes winning that much easier. I trust my teammates and they trust me to contribute to victory," said Katie.

SIXTY SECOND BREAK
Coach Goyette kneels in the center of his team and gives a quick pep-talk during the girls' 60 second break. The girls intently listen to their trusted coach and also have time for a quick sip of water. Being motivated to win and using team work helps these girls succeed.

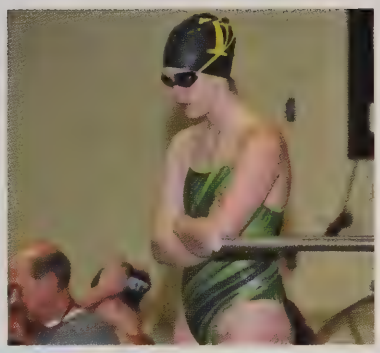
Sophomore Gabby Roberts stands head-to-head with the other team. The sway of the game depends mainly on her. She reaches the ball first and pushes it towards her awaiting team, ready to begin the game.

AIR CLAUDIA
Junior Claudia Fleshman gracefully jumps to get the rebound. She manages to resemble Jordan's famous icon all while playing a good game of basketball. With an oncoming opponent, she comes back down to get the ball.

JV GIRLS' BASKETBALL Row 1: Joan Howland, Emily Morin, Sharlette LaPorte, Rebecca Cooper, Catherine Chasse, Grace McHugh Row 2: Lily Lucas, Madison Doherty, Camier Hall, Alexis Palmer, Kelsey Emrick, Ginger Lucas, Gabrielle Hahn, Shaleea Morehouse

Accidents Happen
Oh no! Freshman Aaron Alonzo loses his goggles while he is swimming his event! Losing your goggles doesn't happen all the time, but it is always an unfortunate thing when it does happen.



Deep Concentration
Senior Taylor Hancock is getting ready to swim her 50 free in the relay. Taylor said, "I have enjoyed swimming throughout high school and I am going to miss it now that it is over."

WORK HARD, SWIM FAST

story by Summer Walker photos by Les Garner

Work hard, swim fast: that's the motto that this year's swim team went by. Even though they lost a lot of good seniors from the previous year, there were a lot of good freshman that came up.

The team had six swimmers go to sectionals and states this year. Senior captain Jake LaPorte came in sixth place in his 50 free, which places and gets a medal. That is amazing!

The girls had senior captain Summer Walker, juniors Kendra Iller and Bailey Waterman, sophomore Sarah Laflamme, and freshman newcomer Ellie Dupre, all of whom made it to sectionals.

Unfortunately, none of the girls placed, but everyone did great and improved on their times!

Coach Molly was very proud of everyone this year. Some of the swimmers were new to swimming and had never competitively swam before, but by the end of the season they improved very much from how they were at the beginning of the season and improved a lot of their times. Captains Summer Walker and Jake LaPorte are very proud of everyone this year as well and will miss everyone next year. But both plan to swim in college next year.

Everyone had a great season! Most cannot wait to come back next year for the next season and do even better next year!

MASTERS OF THE FOUR STROKES OF SWIMMING

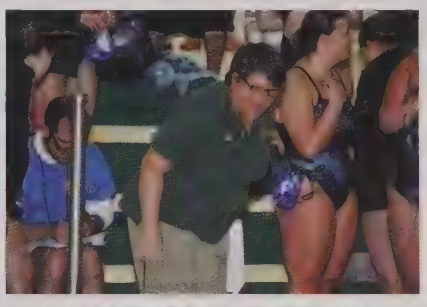
BACKSTROKER
Junior Kendra Iller is swimming backstroke in the 200 IM. She is not known for her backstroke and is more known for her butterfly.

BREASTSTROKER
Junior Jared Mesick is swimming the 50 breast in the 200 medley. Jared is a very diverse swimming and can swim all of the strokes.

FREESTYLER
Sophomore Alex Watson is swimming the 500 free. Alex is the known distance swimming and broke the school record this year for the 500 free.



Words of Encouragement
Coach Molly is encouraging at a swimmer to swim faster. Molly is a very loud coach and everyone can hear her when they are swimming, which is a good thing, since it helps them know to go faster to improve times or win the event.

Our Hard Work Has Paid Off
Junior Kendra Iller, freshman Ellie Dupre, senior Summer Walker, and sophomore Sarah Laflamme are about to swim their last event, the 400 free relay at the final states meet at MIT. The girls were also in the 200 medley relay during this meet. Unfortunately they did not place, but they swam their hardest, improved their times and did very well!

Take your mark... GO!
Everyone is diving off of the block with a splash! This is the 100 butterfly. The swimmers that we can see are Jake LaPorte and Kendra Iller, the two main swimmers of the 100 butterfly.

Cheering for the team
Freshman Ellie Dupre is cheering for her fellow team mates while they swim their event. Ellie said, "I always try to cheer everyone on!"

What we're all about story by Bridget Candelaria photos by Melanie Monteiro

As far as high school goes, it gets better as the grade increases, right? Junior year is a bittersweet median between graduating high school to start an independent life and just getting used to high school. As an eleventh grader, you're finally an upperclassman and have new students looking up to you. But is junior year all it's cracked up to be? With people constantly asking them what they're going to do with their lives and needing to work hard to get into college, juniors have had a tough year. Junior year is a time to enjoy the friends you've made in your three years here while also preparing for your future.

SATs
Taking the SATs is no small task, and during junior year you are finally eligible to stress yourself out about a five hour test. Annie Sherman looks over an SAT prep book.

Check my ride
Most students get their licenses around junior year. With summer fast approaching, more and more student cars are filing out Africa (the faraway parking lot). Jeremy Carter and Sam Domozych let the wind flow through their hair while on a bike.

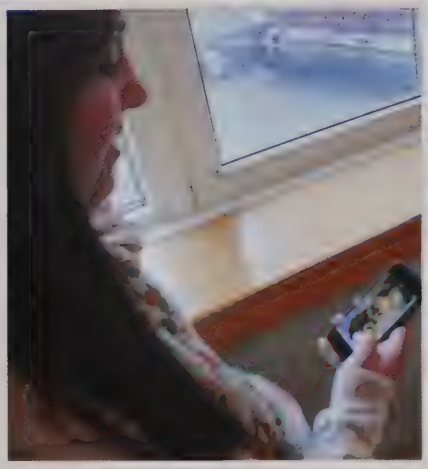
PLANNING FOR COLLEGE
Robyn Phillipo glances at a college board book that gives you insight into almost any college you can think of. Choosing a college junior year seems like a difficult feat, bur for some students it's a breeze. "The college experience is stressful as a junior; I just can't wait to be a senior," said Logan Nardi.

OUR FIRST PROM
Since junior year is the first year students can attend prom, junior girls are going prom crazy! Girls have purchased beautiful gowns and now they're onto finding the perfect hair style and date. Lizzy Elliott looks on Pinterest for a fun hair idea.



THERE IS A LIGHT AT THE TUNNEL
As the spring semester rolls around, many Juniors are preparing for the ultimate test, the AP exam. Sam Robertson, along with his fellow junior classmates, have been struggling through AP Chemistry. Making it through that class is no easy task, but Tyler Cave explained, "getting a B in this difficult class is the best feeling in the world. I'm glad to have taken it as a junior because now I can enjoy senior year."

Are We Almost There?

story by Maddy Mayberry photos by Bridget Candelaria

We've all been there: everyone has gone through the ups and downs of being an underclassman. Sophomore year is that difficult in-between time, when you are not the newbies anymore, but you are not yet ruling the school.

There is so much you can do as a sophomore, though, and getting involved in what the school has to offer, whether it be sports or different activities, is a great way to make a foundation for the type of person you will become throughout the last couple years at Tantasqua.

Getting Involved
Many underclassman at Tantasqua have immersed themselves into the different things the school has to offer. Sophomores Hannah Sorenson and Megan DeMorris, for example, have done their part by getting involved in Relay For Life.

Dreaming of Prom
Sophomores have prom fever! Although many upperclassmen have been preparing to look their best on prom night, some sophomores can't help but wish it was their turn.

Getting Involved in Sports

Joining a sports team as an underclassmen is a great way to meet new people. Being on varsity is a good way to challenge yourself with your peers; it is also a great accomplishment to obtain a varsity letter as a sophomore or freshman.

Required Courses

When you first start your high school career, you are required to get your core courses done first, a gym class being one of them. This class may not be everyone's favorite, but its a great way to spend a block just having fun with your friends.

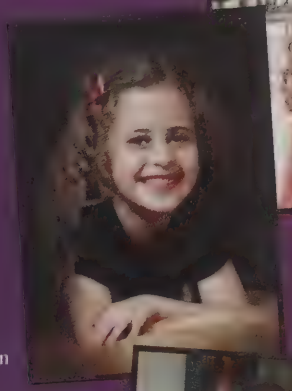
Mikaela



From the beginning, you were a precious blessing to our family. You couldn't wait to get out into the world and experience all that life has to offer. From that first day you showed your strength in overcoming adversity. Where did the time go?

It seems like yesterday we dropped you off for your first day of kindergarten. Watching you grow to become your beautiful self fills our hearts with joy and makes us realize how much better our life has been just having you in it.

We are so proud of how hard you have worked, all that you have accomplished and the amazing woman you have become. Dedicating yourself to helping others has only added to our pride.

We know that it has not always been easy, but you always stood by your values of hard work, service, kindness, honesty, dependability, empathy, loyalty and compassion.

Your time at Tantasqua is coming to a close. You have had great success over these past four years. It has brought us such pride and joy to see students and staff alike bestow so many honors and awards upon you. You just continue to SHINE!

We pray that your life continues to be filled with happiness and success as you continue your journey. Embrace your accomplishments, pursue your dreams, believe in yourself and always remember you are loved to the moon and back!

Love, Mom, Dad and Brothe
